STATE OF THE JUDICIARY MESSAGE

The presentation of the annual State of the Judiciary Report provides an opportunity to reflect upon past activities as well as a chance to contemplate the future direction of the court system. Both these exercises are beneficial. Only through continuous study and critical evaluation of past and present practices can we insure readiness for the future. Once we have analyzed our past activities and identified our present strengths and weaknesses, we will be better able to chart a steady course. With thoughtful, well-conceived plans, we can successfully meet the demands placed upon the judicial system in the years ahead.

Furthermore, reviewing achievements of the past year affords an occasion to express appreciation to all those who have contributed to improvements in the court system. I number among this group not only the members of the General Assembly who have supported measures promotive of a better judiciary but also those within the system who have given of their time and energy to improve its lot. And I want to take this opportunity to express my personal gratitude to all who have extended to me in the last twelve months a helpful hand of cooperation.

A RETROSPECTIVE VIEW

In reflecting upon the past year and the improvements achieved within the judicial system, one naturally starts with the actions of the General Assembly. I know it is no longer news, but I am still pleased to report to you officially that the 1984 General Assembly acted favorably with respect to judicial compensation. As you know, the legislature approved a ten percent salary increase for judges, effective July 1, 1984. This will bring circuit court compensation to $62,700 annually. In addition, the State will assume each judge's contribution for group life insurance. State assumption of this expense is roughly equivalent to an additional one percent salary increase.

Aside from the dollars and cents involved in the salary increase, I sense a changed attitude on the part of the General Assembly leadership toward the compensation problems of the judiciary. There is some reason to believe, therefore, that the recent General Assembly salary action constitutes recognition that compensation levels must be structured not only to attract and retain men and women of unquestioned integrity but also to entice those who by training and experience have demonstrated a capacity to rise above the level of normal accomplishment and status in their field.

By granting the salary increase, the General Assembly has made a tangible commitment to the maintenance of a qualified judiciary in Virginia. I applaud the members of the General Assembly for their action, but, at the same time, I ask for their continued understanding and support in this vital area.

The General Assembly also approved funding for the newly created Court of Appeals. With an appropriation of 3.2 million dollars for the next biennium, the legislature enabled the court to commence operation on January 1, 1985.

The General Assembly also made some changes in the set up of the new court. In the most significant modification, the earlier provision for an appeal of right in criminal cases was deleted and replaced by a petition process similar to the procedure currently employed by the Supreme Court of Virginia. In moving to the petition process for criminal cases, the General Assembly cited substantial monetary savings that would occur by reducing the need for additional staff in the office of the Attorney General. The General Assembly also increased the membership of the new court from nine to ten.

To provide for the orderly start-up of the Court of Appeals, the 1984 legislation specifies that all cases within the court's jurisdiction decided by circuit courts on or after October 1, 1984, and all cases decided by the Industrial Commission on or after November 1, may be appealed only to the Court of Appeals. These provisions should establish a reasonable caseload for the court by the time it begins operation. The rules of practice and procedure for the new court have been prepared and adopted by the Supreme Court, to become effective October 1, 1984, in accordance with the terms of the 1984 legislation.

While the format of the Court of Appeals may not suit even the most ardent supporters of the effort to create an intermediate appeallate court, the funding of the new tribunal represents a significant step toward the expansion of appellate capacity in Virginia. After the court has operated a while and we are able to identify areas needing improvement, I am confident the General Assembly will act reasonably to rectify any shortcomings.

In the meantime, the new court deserves a chance to prove its worth. In this effort, it will need the support of the bench, the bar, and the public to make certain that it becomes an integral and valuable part of our judicial system. I solicit your cooperation as we endeavor to implement this new member of the family of courts.

The General Assembly also took positive action, albeit less than we requested, to improve a situation that had reached near-crisis proportions. Despite substantial annual increases in the workload of the district courts, no new positions have been budgeted for the clerks' offices of those courts in the last four years.

In our budget request, we sought 105 new positions in district court clerks' offices for the biennium. The General Assembly gave us 44. This action should provide at least partial relief, and for this I am grateful to the General Assembly. And I want to express my personal appreciation to all the employees of the court system who assumed additional duties and worked longer hours to insure that the public was served despite adverse conditions.

In addition to providing new employees to help with our workload problems, the General Assembly authorized funding for the continued automation of the courts. With the new money, we will be able to automate 48 additional courts during the next biennium. This means that 72 courts will have one or more automated systems by June 30, 1986. These improvements will provide advanced computer technology to assist Virginia's courts in the delivery of services to the public during a period of increasing demand.

One further action of the General Assembly is worthy of note. In adopting the biennial budget, the legislature made funds available to restore the continuing judicial education program to the level it had reached prior to the termination of L.E.A.A. financing. Beginning this coming July, we will have limited funds for training at the National Judicial College and other recognized out-of-state educational programs. Furthermore, we will be able to reinstate visits to correctional and mental health facilities and to again provide law school evening programs for judges.

By appropriating $151 million for operation of the judicial system during the next biennium, the General Assembly has presented the judiciary a strong challenge. We must utilize these funds in an efficient manner and also address forthrightly the weaknesses within the judicial system. While this challenge brings with it new responsibilities, I know you join me in accepting both the challenge and the new duties. And I am sure you share my gratitude to the General Assembly for its favorable action on judicial compensation and its appropriation of other funds for improving the court system.

FUTURE DIRECTIONS

Having reflected on the activities of the past year, we should now turn our attention to the future. In reviewing the Comprehensive Judicial Plan approved by the Judicial Council, I found and am pleased to report that of the seventy-one tasks to be performed during the 1983-86 time frame, thirty have been undertaken and some have already been completed. This is a commendable beginning. More remains to be done.

I want to mention three major areas requiring initiative during the next two years. These areas are: Procedural restructuring, merit selection of judges, and public confidence in the courts.

Procedural Restructuring

In evaluating our courts from a procedural perspective, three areas of deficiency are apparent. The first involves the current division of responsibility between juvenile and domestic relations district courts on the one hand and circuit courts on the other regarding adjudication of domestic relations matters. A study is presently underway to identify the legal and operational problems generated by this division and to seek their solution.

The realization has emerged from the study that many of the problems in this area have their roots in the trial de novo concept. This leads me in turn to believe that the time has come to consider the elimination of the provision for trial de novo in appeals from both general district courts and juvenile and domestic relations district courts.

The historical basis of the trial de novo provision—the parttime nature of the lower courts—no longer exists. The legal basis—the necessity to satisfy the constitutional requirement of a jury trial—presents a more difficult, but perhaps not insurmountable, problem. Some observers believe the constitutional problem can be solved by requiring the parties in cases within the jurisdiction of the district courts to elect between a trial by judge at district court level and a trial by jury in circuit court.

The abolition of the trial de novo would eliminate duplication of effort within the judicial system and reduce both time and expense to litigants. It is obvious that serious study must be given the issue. It is time to begin this review. As we proceed with our investigation of the need for a family court, I am hopeful that we can expand the scope of this inquiry and seriously pursue options to the trial de novo procedure.

Jury management is another area requiring improvement. Excessive waiting time, last-minute continuances, lack of juror orientation, inefficient summoning and qualification procedures, excessive exemptions, and long periods of juror service are but a few of the areas cited for improvement by citizens and court system personnel. A blue-ribbon panel of judges, lawyers, and clerks of court has been appointed to address these issues as well as review the American Bar Association's new Jury Management Standards. Hopefully, this study will lead to innovative suggestions which can be implemented throughout the State. Other states have found that improved jury management presents an opportunity to save tax dollars and to establish better public relations within the citizenry.

Finally, in the procedural area, emphasis must be placed on providing fair and equitable sentencing policies in the courts of the Commonwealth. During this conference, you will hear concerns expressed about widespread disparity in sentencing. Later, the Governor's Task Force on Sentencing will present its views on sentencing disparity at a series of regional meetings in the fall. From what has appeared thus far, it is clear there is a need to gather better information on persons accused as well as to obtain accurate comparative sentencing data. We must begin the preparation of detailed statewide reports of sentences imposed by various jurisdictions for specific offenses with similar characteristics. Distribution of the reports to all judges on a continuing basis should significantly reduce sentence disparity. In addition, I feel compelled to renew my call for elimination of jury sentencing as another positive step toward reduction of disparity and the introduction of professionalism in this important part of the trial process.

Merit Selection

For many years numerous individuals and groups have called for merit selection of judges as a means to insure the continued high quality of our judiciary. The creation of a Judicial Nominations Commission has been the traditional proposal aimed at effecting merit selection. The General Assembly has rejected on several occasions legislation creating such a commission. It became obvious to me last year that alternatives must be found to accomplish the objectives of merit selection. For this reason, I proposed in my 1983 report to you that judicial nominating commissions be created in Virginia but that their recommendations be made advisory only and not binding upon the General Assembly. I voiced the hope that, in time, the worth of the commissions might become so evident that their recommendations would carry more than advisory weight.

Last year's proposal fared no better than its predecessors. Indeed, merit selection's most ardent legislature supporters have become so disheartened that no bill on the subject was introduced at the last General Assembly session.

My belief in the worth of merit selection remains constant. I urge once more, therefore, that judicial nominating commissions be created in Virginia, with advisory authority only. I make one concession, however; I propose creating the commissions on a trial basis, say for five years. If, at the end of that period, the commissions have not proved effective, then I will be the first to admit the whole idea should be scrapped; and I will officiate at its burial.

Restoring Public Confidence

The lack of public confidence in the courts, demonstrated so vividly in the recent Hearst Report, stems primarily, I think, from a lack of public understanding of the courts. In an effort to better inform the public concerning the operations of the court system, Judicial Council is considering a number of objectives with specific tasks aimed at implementing each objective. Several of the proposals deserve your consideration.

For example, Council is in the process of developing policy guidelines for all judicial system personnel. The guidelines would standardize and encourage dissemination of appropriate information to the public by identifying what is releasable information and prescribing release procedures. The purpose of this project is to insure that, when information is released, it meets "fair trial, free press" standards and is accurate.

Other projects include efforts to encourage members of the judicial system to speak to the public through appropriate forums such as churches, colleges, civic organizations, and the media. In addition, plans are being implemented to expand law-related studies in Virginia elementary, middle, and high schools. Supplemental texts are being prepared to assist in teaching the subject of Virginia's judicial system in school grades K through 12.

Last, but certainly not least, one of the Council objectives urges the chief judge of each circuit to develop a docent, or court tour, program similar to plans presently operating in several areas of the state.

The Hearst survey I mentioned a moment ago showed that fully one-half the people in this country believed that a person accused of crime must prove his or her own innocence. The same poll also showed that 52% of high school graduates and 83% of those with an eighth grade education or less harbored this mistaken belief.

I find these figures shocking, to say the least. And I think we are duty-bound to do something about the situation.

Informed observers believe that the way to reduce the 50% overall figure is to work with those making up the 52% and 83% groups, or, in other words, those in school below college level. And I am convinced that one of the best ways of capturing the interest of these young people is through the docent program, enabling them to visit the courts and to learn firsthand how the legal system operates.

As some of you know, I have been advocating the expansion of the docent program into every corner of the Commonwealth. I am happy to report that the idea of a statewide program might become a reality. Only recently, the Virginia Lawyer's Auxiliary, an organization that represents all the bar auxiliaries in Virginia, agreed to appoint a statewide law-related education committee to coordinate the docent programs already in existence and to encourage and support the formation of others throughout the Commonwealth.

I must emphasize, however, that neither the docent program nor the remainder of Judicial Council's education plan will succeed without your encouragement and support. I request, therefore, your active participation in an effort to eradicate from society the sort of ignorance which would cause half our people to believe that one accused of crime must prove himself or herself innocent.

The task of educating the public will not be an easy one; indeed, it represents a giant undertaking in which success might be an elusive goal. But succeed we must. It is our duty as judges to help develop an enlightened citizenry, well informed on basic principles and better equipped to participate in the administration of justice.

This and the other tasks I have outlined for future attention all have as their common goal the restoration of the courts to a position of public respect. Your cooperation is vital to the achievement of this essential goal. As I solicit your support, I am at once made confident of your affirmative and wholehearted response, for which you have my sincere gratitude.

The Judiciary's Year In Review

COMPREHENSIVE JUDICIAL PLAN

Within the first year following its adoption by the Judicial Council, implementation of the 1983-86 Comprehensive Judicial Plan is well underway. By early 1984, thirty of the 71 action items contained in the Plan have been undertaken and or completed.

The Comprehensive Plan was developed under the auspices of the Council's Judicial Administration Committee in cooperation with the corresponding Judicial Administration Committees of the two Judicial Conferences. It addresses areas of needed improvement within all courts, as identified in a 1982 survey of Virginia judges, clerks, and chief magistrates. Highlights of the year's work in executing the Plan appear below.

COURT OF APPEALS

Perhaps the most significant objective contained in the Plan is the establishment of the Court of Appeals. Legislation to create the Court of Appeals was enacted by the 1983 General Assembly. During its 1984 Session, the legislature appropriated $3.2 million for the approval of the court to commence operation on January 1, 1985.

In addition, the 1984 General Assembly enacted several amendments to the original legislation adopted in 1983. The most significant change is the creation of a petition or writ of error procedure for criminal cases rather than an appeal as a matter of right as originally envisioned. Criminal cases being appealed from circuit courts to the Court of Appeals will proceed by petition similar to the procedure currently employed by the Supreme Court of Virginia. If a criminal petition is granted, the case will be heard on the merits by a panel of three judges. It is expected that the court will sit in panels of three judges at various locations throughout the State. Domestic relations cases and cases originating before an administrative agency will continue to be heard as appeals as a matter of right. In moving to the petition process for criminal cases, the legislature cited the monetary savings which will occur by reducing the need for new assistant attorneys general. It is anticipated that the Commonwealth's attorney will file the brief-in-opposition on all criminal appeals as is presently done before the Supreme Court. The Attorney General's Office will assume responsibility for the case only when a petition is granted for hearing on the merits.

In other changes, the General Assembly increased the number of judges from nine to ten. Election of the judges for the Court of Appeals is expected to be held at the 1985 session of the General Assembly.

In another move, the General Assembly altered the method of selecting the Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals. As adopted in 1983, the original chief judge would have been designated by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Virginia, and thereafter, a seniority system would apply. The recent legislature decided to provide for the selection of the chief judge by a majority vote of the judges of the Court of Appeals. The chief judge will serve for a term of four years.

In order to allow an orderly transition of cases to the Court of Appeals, the new legislation provides that, in any case within the appellate jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals in which the judgment appealed from is entered by the circuit court on or after October 1, 1984, appeal shall be only to the Court of Appeals. This action should establish a reasonable caseload in January 1985 when the court begins action.

Over the past several years, the Appellate Rules Project Committee has met and drafted the proposed Rules of Court for the Court of Appeals. Appointed by the Chief Justice, this committee includes the Honorable Richard H. Poff, Justice; Honorable Ernest W. Ballou, Judge; Honorable Norman K. Moon, Judge; Honorable Wiley R. Wright, Jr., Judge; Mr. Edward S. Graves; Mr. William T. Prince; Mr. John Riely, and Professor W. Clark Williams, Jr. The rules of practice and procedure for the court will be promulgated by the Supreme Court before July 1, 1984.

Creation of the new Court of Appeals is a major achievement in the continuing effort to improve the administration of justice in Virginia. While changes and improvements will be necessary after experience is gained in the operation of the court, the significant step toward expansion of appellate capacity in Virginia has been taken.

INDIGENT DEFENSE SERVICES

The 1984 General Assembly also enacted a bill to establish indigency guidelines for use by all courts to determine whether or not a defendant charged with a criminal offense is entitled to legal counsel at public expense. The guidelines were recommended for statewide implementation by the Indigency Standards Advisory Committee. The 1983-86 Plan called upon Chief Justice Carrico to appoint this Committee to study the advisability of developing such guidelines. Serving on the committee were Honorable Bernard G. Barrow, Judge; Honorable H. Selwyn Smith, Judge; Honorable Melvin R. Hughes, Judge; Honorable James L. Tompkins, Judge; Honorable J. R. Zepkin, Judge; Honorable John E. Kloch, Commonwealth's Attorney; Honorable Barbara R. Williams, Circuit Court Clerk; Mrs. Opal R. Hall, District Court Clerk; Mr. Dennis W. Dohnal, Esquire and Mr. Clifford R. Weckstein, Esquire.

Funding for court-appointed counsel has been a substantial issue within the 1980's both for courts and the General Assembly. Numerous concerns continue to be raised about the effectiveness of the court-appointed counsel system and the equity of the current fee structure for lawyers representing indigents. Also crucial to the funding issue is the manner in which courts determine the eligibility of an accused for court-appointed counsel. While general criteria are provided by statute and through the 1983 Appropriations

Act, there are at present no specific indigency standards in Virginia that are similar to those implemented in several other states.

Under the new law which becomes effective July 1, 1984, a defendant is presumed eligible for court-appointed counsel if he or she is a current recipient of a public assistance program for indigents, such as welfare. This presumption is rebuttable where the court finds that a more thorough investigation into financial resources is necessary. A written financial statement will be required of any person requesting court-appointed counsel. The statement shall include information concerning the defendant's total net income and assets, as well as any exceptional expenses which would prohibit his or her hiring private counsel.

If a defendant is not presumptively eligible (as explained above), the law provides courts with monetary guidelines to determine whether or not counsel should be appointed. These financial guidelines are figured at 125% of the federal poverty income guidelines, and they are similar to those utilized by Legal Aid offices. If a defendant's funds exceed 125% of the poverty guidelines and he fails to employ counsel or waive right to counsel, the court may, in exceptional circumstances, appoint an attorney to represent him.

A new manual relating to these guidelines and other aspects of the court-appointment process is being prepared and will be distributed to all courts in July.

COURT HANDLING OF FAMILY MATTERS

Also named by Chief Justice Carrico in 1983 was a ten-person advisory committee which began work on an in-depth study of the handling of domestic relations matters by Virginia courts. Creation of this study was prompted by numerous judges and clerks citing problems currently existing in the present division of responsibility and overlapping jurisdiction between the juvenile and domestic relations district courts and circuit courts in regard to adjudication of domestic relations matters. Within the 1982 issues survey, the creation of a family court structure was ranked as the one change most judges would most like to see implemented within the judicial branch.

Appointed to serve on the committee were the Honorable R. J. Jamborsky, Judge; Honorable Lawrence Janow, Judge; Honorable Frederick P. Aucamp, Judge; Honorable Lawrence Koontz, Jr., Judge; Honorable William F. Parkerson, Jr., Senator; Honorable C. Hardaway Marks, Delegate; Ms. N. H. Scott and Mr. Robert H. Sutton, Department of Corrections; and Mrs. Susan Moenssens, Mr. Paul M. Lipkin, and Mr. Donald W. Lemons, attorneys.

Virginia presently operates under a dual system where juvenile and domestic relations district courts have exclusive original jurisdiction over juvenile delinquency and children in need of services cases, and circuit courts have exclusive original jurisdiction over annulments, divorce and adoptions. In matters of custody, support, and visitation, there is overlapping jurisdiction. Presently many circuit court judges are transferring custody and support matters of individual divorce cases to juvenile and domestic relations district courts for hearing. Legal and operational problems exist under the present division of responsibility between these courts, with appeal to the circuit court being by trial de novo since the juvenile and domestic relations district courts are not of record.

The Committee is examining numerous alternatives, including the advisability of establishing a family court system. The Advisory Committee is scheduled to complete its work and submit a final report to the Judicial Council, the Committee on District Courts and to the Judicial Conferences in 1984.

In addition to this study, staff of the Office of the Executive Secretary is compiling information to evaluate the success of several family mediation programs which are in operation throughout the state. Results of the evaluation will be presented to the Committee on District Courts and to all judges during 1984.

JURY MANAGEMENT

Another area of concern addressed within the Plan is jury management. During 1983, the Supreme Court of Virginia contracted with the Center for Jury Studies of the National Center for State Courts to conduct a comprehensive study of the Virginia jury system. The staff of this Center analyzed the existing statutory and rule requirements, and contacted every circuit court clerk in the state to document the methods for implementation of these requirements, the costs for using a jury, and the local practices which have evolved to deal with jury management problems. Staff also visited eleven circuit court clerk's offices (Arlington, Bristol, Fairfax, Henrico, Loudoun, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Richmond Divisions I and II, Virginia Beach and Wise) and conducted extensive telephone conversations with the other 111 circuit court clerks. It is believed that this is the first such study involving a state the size of Virginia in which every court that uses jurors was included in the survey. A portion of the center's report is reprinted below.

Due to the scope of the jury management survey, aided by the cooperation given by circuit court clerks, their staffs, and by sheriff's departments, the Center was able to collect an extensive amount of data which is included in their findings, observations and recommendations. Among the recommendations included in the report are:

- Testing the use of a combined Voter/Driver list as the source of juror names;
- Having the state provide computer support to counties and cities without such facilities to provide randomized juror selection. Have those counties and cities with computer facilities help adjoining localities which do not have them;
- Orienting jurors to the tasks ahead before their first voir dire;
- Making jurors responsible to call the court for information and to acknowledge receipt of their jury duty notice. Also consider the installation of answering equipment to receive after-hours calls to tell jurors of last minute schedule changes;
- Paying jurors with a single check;
- Using first class mail for summoning;
- Using juror surveys and exit questionnaires;
- Including jury management as a subject in judicial and clerk education programs;
- Following up on unique jury management practices and reporting them to all clerks;
- Combining Qualification and Summoning;
- Restructuring the role of jury commissioners or eliminating such positions; and
- Assessing jury costs in civil cases

An interesting aspect of the study dealt with the computation of costs per jury trial. Using reported data, the cost per jury trial in every circuit court was calculated. Only jury fees, state and local, are included in this cost. The cost data is presented on the following table, which is divided by size of court. The size groupings are shown by the number of jury trials per year. (A dot before the jurisdiction name indicates that 1982 or 1983 data has been used. Since the later figures with the higher juror fees do not bunch in the higher categories, the assumption is made that the cost per juror day before and after the fee change is essentially the same.) One could adjust these figures if more trials occurred before the fee change in mid-1982 as compared to after the change. However, no such adjustments were made. The purpose of this table is to establish the concept of cost per trial, not an exact comparison of these figures from one year to the next.

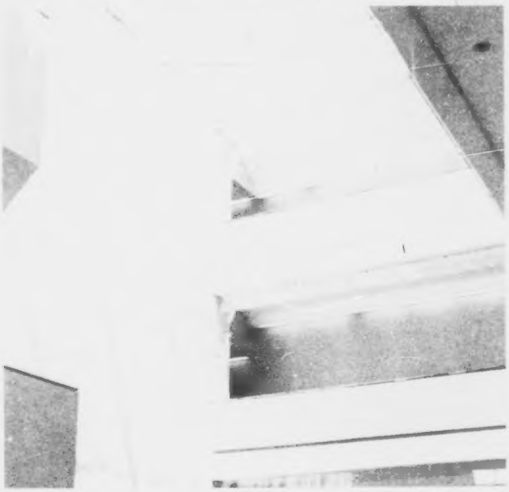
Measure of cost per trial can be likened to the measure of miles per gallon. Most drivers have a sense of an expected or typical value for their car. If it goes up, attention is needed, although the measure itself does not indicate a diagnosis of the problem. Likewise, if someone else with a similar car gets far better mileage, it deserves attention in that current habits or practices may not be conducive to efficient driving.

While giving a first level measure of jury system efficiency, the cost per trial is biased by uncontrollable factors such as long trials or notorious cases requiring large panels. No attempt to remove this bias has been undertaken. The large numbers of misdemeanor trials also biases the results. The ratio of civil to criminal jury trials also biases these results making cross jurisdictional comparisons less valid.

The cost per trial measure is very useful, because it is easy to calculate and is biased by the following factors which are indicative of jury system efficiency.

1. Small panels – not a lot of extra people.
2. Few "zero days" – days when the panel or group of persons are brought in but not used.
3. Orientation on first day of voir dires, not on a separate day.
4. A call in or call out system that reaches everybody.
5. Good controls of the number reporting.

If a judge or clerk wishes to monitor any figure monthly or annually, the cost per trial is easy to calculate, easily understood and recommended.



Each jurisdiction can calculate its cost per jury trial by dividing total jury expenses by number of jury trials. Potential savings can be identified by subtracting the cost per trial from the average for the size of court and multiplying that savings per trial times the number of trials. If the average cost is below the statewide average, as it should be for about one half of the counties, no savings will result. If all jurisdictions now having a cost per trial above the average are to reduce this cost to the average cost for their size group, then over $400,000 could be saved annually in Virginia. This represents about 18% of the estimated combined state and local expenditures for jurors of $2.34 million per year. While these savings are substantial and worthy of consideration, they are not as excessive as some critics contend.

The savings by size group as follows:

	Avg. Cost Trial	Savings
Small Courts	$563	$108,000
Medium Courts	$400	122,000
Large Courts	$457	198,000

The average cost by court size indicates a much higher cost per trial in the smaller courts. This is due to the large number of small courts with very high costs. If the nine small courts with average costs of $1000 or more are not included in the calculation of the average, then the average would be $433 or near the medium and large courts' costs per trial.

The conclusion, therefore, is that economy of operation is more individually determined than by the size of court. That is, the data does not indicate that court size implies low or high costs per trial.

In addition, the report also outlined an "Ideal Virginia Jury System." Stating that the first and foremost concern of such a system must be the citizen, whether as plaintiff, taxpayer, defendant or juror, the report then lists the following operational requirements of the ideal system:

- A broad source list;
- A random selection of names for veniremen;
- A simple qualifying questionnaire;
- Uniform service of summons;
- Short term of service;
- Few unnecessary trips to the courthouse;
- Prompt and complete payment; and
- Court monitoring of the jury system operation.

The report concludes that many of the components of an ideal system are found in Virginia circuit courts, but that no one court has all of them. The requirements listed in the ideal system are consistent with the Standards Relating to Juror Use and Management adopted by the American Bar Association and are within the capacities of all circuit courts in Virginia.

Subsequent to the filing of this report, a special committee was formed to study the Standards Relating to Juror Use and Management and to determine how to implement the recommendations of this Virginia study in light of such national standards and under conditions as they exist in Virginia. Committee members includes the Honorable Marvin F. Cole, Judge; Honorable Barbara M. Keenan, Judge; Honorable Jack B. Coulter, Judge; Honorable Samuel W. Coleman, III, Judge; Honorable J. Warren Stephens, Judge; Honorable George E. Holt, Jr., Circuit Court Clerk; Honorable Hugh L. Stovall, Circuit Court Clerk; Honorable H. Benjamin Vincent, Commonwealth's Attorney; Honorable Richard H. Barrick, Commonwealth's Attorney; Mr. Claude M. Hilton, Esquire; Mr. Wilbur C. Allen, Esquire; Mr. John M. Hollis, Esquire and Mr. Thomas V. Monahan, Esquire.

AUTOMATION IN THE COURTS

During 1983, substantial progress was achieved as the Courts Automation Information system Network expanded to include all of the courts in the pilot region as well as the Alexandria and Henrico Juvenile and Domestic Relations Courts. In addition, six courts in the Tidewater area have installed terminal equipment and have begun preliminary preparation and training. The year closed with the Support Payment System's becoming operational in four Juvenile and Domestic Relations and one Combined Court while the Financial Management System has been installed in two General District and three Circuit Courts.

Development of the CAIS has been phased beginning with the Support Payment System which became operational in October 1982. Following implementation of the Support Payment System, development resources have been shifted and production of the Financial Management System software is now in progress. Upon implementation of the Financial Management System, resources were then allocated to the Case Management System which is currently at a mid-point in development and scheduled for implementation in the pilot court in the summer of 1984. Development of a Records Indexing System for circuit courts will begin upon completion of the Case Management System effort.

Implementation of the CAIS in all courts begins with the installation of electronic cash registers three or four months prior to the court's scheduled training and terminal installation date. Since electronic cash registers are an integral part of the CAIS system and since they are a very valuable asset to the court even in a stand-alone mode, their advanced installation and use facilitates court operations and paves the way for training and conversion to an automated system. Following training, practice and operational use of the electronic cash registers, training in the CAIS itself will begin.

In a juvenile and domestic relations court, this means that training in the Support Payment System will commence. Training will start with a familiarization of the equipment to be used (terminals and printers) and then advance to the actual operation of the system itself data base description, case entry and update procedures, inquiry techniques, arrearage calculations, support checks issuance, reports, etc. The initial training module is scheduled to be conducted over a consecutive three-day period with subsequent training coordinated to the activities of the court and at a pace conducive to court personnel. When a satisfactory degree of proficiency has been achieved, conversion to the automated system will be scheduled. Conversion involves the actual loading of active cases into the system, and the length of the conversion period is directly dependent upon the number of cases then active in the court. Overall, a period of three months is allocated to train and convert to the automated Support Payment System.

In a general district or circuit court, the first system to be implemented is the Financial Management System. The initial training, therefore, will, in addition to terminal training, involve coordination of the reports produced by the electronic cash register with those produced by the automated system. The second phase of training will primarily focus on the on-line system with its provision for direct entry of transactions such as journal voucher entries, disbursements, inquiries, etc.; and the typical daily and montly reports produced by a general ledger accounting system, i.e., trial balance, check register, etc.

The second phase of training will be initiated only after court personnel have digested the initial training and have had sufficient time to develop a level of proficiency. Following the second phase of training, fee and revenue account balances and liability accounts (e.g. bonds) will be loaded into the systems and a parallel operation of the manual and automated systems will begin. Parallel operation of manual and automated systems (Support Financial Case Management) will always be required and will continue until th. clerk of the court is satisfied that the automated system is performing satisfactorily. Then, and only then, will a manual system be discontinued.

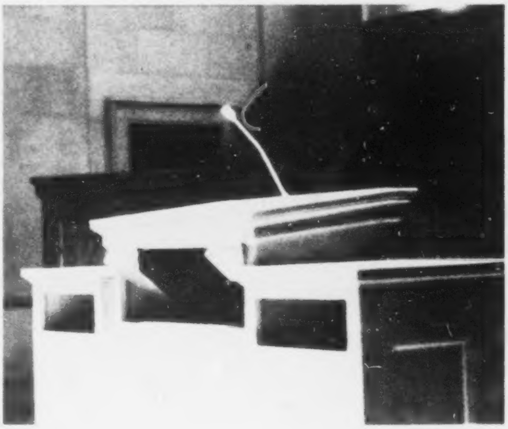
During calendar year 1984, the CAIS network is scheduled to add another 23 courts so that by the end of that year, 37 courts will be operational with one or more of the CAIS systems. Also during 1984, development of the Case Management segment of the CAIS is scheduled for completion and installation in the pilot court. Development of a Records Indexing system will then begin.

Automation activities will continue throughout this decade. These efforts will result in advanced computer technology to assist Virginia's courts in the delivery of services to the public.

REVISION OF THE CIRCUIT COURT CASELOAD REPORTING SYSTEM

In order to provide more accurate, timely, and useful information about the judicial system, the Comprehensive Plan provides for the revision of the caseload reporting systems in operation in the courts and magistrates offices. This task is taking place in phases. In 1983, the Circuit Court Caseload Reporting System was redesigned and updated. The circuit court system was addressed first because of its interplay with the design of the case management portion of the Court Automated Information System. In order to automate monthly reports, definitions of reporting categories and case types had to be further enunciated. In addition, the circuit caseload system had not been revised since its implementation in 1977. A number of judges and clerks have voiced concern over perceived inconsistencies associated with case counting as well as need for updating the system overall.

In an effort to address these concerns, a committee of judges, clerks of court, and personnel from the Office of the Executive Secretary was established to undertake the project. Membership includes Judges Willard I. Walker of Richmond and Kenneth E. Trabue of Roanoke, Circuit Court Clerks Michael M. Foreman of Winchester and Dean P. Agee of Louisa, Chief Deputy Clerk Ronald R. Belton, Richmond and Shirley J. Buckley, Management Analyst, Fairfax County. The committee's efforts have focused on reducing the subjective areas of case counting to improve the overall credibility of information collected. The committee's work has been guided by the existing scheme of caseload reporting.



Among major changes made to the system are the development of more concise definitions and a comprehensive listing of case types to be captured in the system, elimination of certain categories such as trial scheduling, fugitive cases and cases in abeyance, and expansion of jury trial information to include the actual number of jury trials held in each court. For the first time, information on the number of defendants involved in criminal cases in circuit courts will be captured. This statistic is requested by a large number of state and local agencies as well as by citizen groups. Finally, a new mechanism was initiated to track each court's inventory of pending cases. This data will be fed into the computer in order to generate a quarterly inventory of cases pending disposition for each court. This enhancement had been requested by numerous judges as a tool for local management. Pending case statistics will assist local courts in assigning judges and court personnel to various divisions within the circuit as well as to various courts within a particular jurisdiction.

PUBLIC INFORMATION AND EDUCATION

Virginia judges and court system personnel continue to be concerned about the public's perception of the judicial system. This was indicated by responses to the 1982 planning survey where those responding ranked programs to improve public understanding of the courts as their second highest priority within the system today. The public's lack of understanding of the judicial system seems to encompass four aspects: (a) a growing lack of respect for the law; (b) a lack of understanding of the judicial system's structure and procedures; (c) user's lack of understanding of individual court's procedures, and (d) a lack of understanding of the judiciary by the media and vice versa.

In response to these concerns, the Judicial Council initiated a study to develop goals and objectives to inform and educate citizens about the court system and its functions, procedures, and services. Citing the fact that the structure, personnel and resources are in place within the judicial system to inform and educate the public, the study concluded that it is necessary to establish a clear policy in this regard as well as to set goals and objectives to support the information education endeavor.

The Information and Public Relations Committee of the Judicial Council currently has under study the following goal statement and five companion objectives:

Goal: To improve public understanding of the Virginia Judicial System and its operation.

Objective A: To improve the performance of judicial system personnel in providing appropriate information to the public.

Objective B: To improve public understanding of the judicial system's role in a democracy.

Objective C: To improve young people's understanding of the law and the legal system.

Objective D: To improve public understanding of the Virginia Court system, and of individual courts.

Objective E: To improve understanding and cooperation between courts.

The goal statement and objectives will be reviewed by the two Judicial Conferences during 1984. A final report will then be given to the Council and the media.

OTHER PLAN ACTIVITIES

Work was initiated on numerous other action items specified in the Plan. Staff of the state court administrator's office provided technical assistance to the Forms Review and Revision Committee of the Circuit Court Clerk's Association in the development of proposed uniform forms. As drafted the forms will be presented to the Forms Review and Revision Committee during 1984 for further action. Also, a legislative resolution was introduced and passed directing the Committee on District Courts to establish a study to determine the cost effectiveness of expanding the use of court service staff to General District Courts. Such staff are utilized in a few areas in Virginia to provide courts with additional sentencing alternatives.

Significantly, the General Assembly appropriated more than $1 million to fund educational opportunities for judicial system personnel, restoring such funding to the level that existed prior to cut-off of LEAA dollars. This was a key objective of the 1983-86 Plan. An additional $25,000 was appropriated to allow judges to attend special seminars on sentencing.

MEDICAL MALPRACTICE REVIEW PANELS

The use of Medical Malpractice Review Panels has steadily increased since their inception in 1976. In 1983, 168 panels were assigned, an increase of 25 (18%) over 1982. In the seven full years of the Medical Review System, an average of 113 panels per year have been processed.

In order to understand more fully the Medical Malpractice Review Panel System, a recap of its development follows:

The General Assembly of Virginia enacted at its 1976 session legislation which created a system of Medical Malpractice Review Panels. Virginia Code Sections 8-911 through 8-922 became effective on July 1, 1976. The Supreme Court of Virginia was given authority to administer the Medical Review Panel System, and the first panel was assigned on December 6, 1976.

Under the original legislation, all aspects of health care administered by "health care providers" (HCPs) were covered. As a condition precedent to the bringing of a malpractice suit against an HCP, a claimant was required to notify the HCP in writing when the alleged malpractice occurred. Virginia Code Section 8-912 required the claimant to describe the act or acts of alleged malpractice. Written notice started a clock, and either the claimant or HCP could file a written request within 60 days to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Virginia asking that it be reviewed by a Medical Review Panel. A claimant was prohibited from bringing a lawsuit within a 90-day period following original notification to the HCP, and, if the Chief Justice was asked to review a matter, litigation could not be brought during the pending review period.

The 1977 General Assembly amended Sections 8-911 through 8-922 and recodified them in Volume 2, Sections 8.01-581.1 through 8.01-581.18. The original requirement that the panel of three impartial attorneys and three impartial HCP's be from the Congressional District where the suit was initiated was changed to provide that panel members, including the Judge-Chairman, would be drawn from a state-wide list.

From the first panel in December 1976 through December 31, 1983, 789 panels have been requested. Of this number, 204 have been withdrawn, 50 dismissed, 400 concluded and 135 remain in a pending or to-be-heard status.

Section 8.01-581.7 of the Code states that, within thirty days after receiving all evidence, a panel shall have the duty, after joint deliberation, to render one or more of the following opinions:

1. Evidence does not support a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care;
2. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure is a proximate cause in the alleged damages;
3. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure is not a proximate cause in the alleged damages; or
4. Evidence indicates that there is a material issue of fact, not requiring an expert opinion, bearing on liability for consideration by a court or jury (i.e., the case contains a material issue of fact that a court or jury can resolve without an expert opinion).

As has been true since the inception of the Review System, the largest number of claims are filed in the state's major urban areas of Northern Virginia, Tidewater, and Richmond. Hospital administrators, orthopaedic and general surgeons and physicians with obstetric and gynecological practices account for the largest number of panel requests.

FISCAL RESOURCES ANALYSIS

The General Assembly appropriated $141,840,623 to support the operation of Virginia's judicial system during the 1982-1984 biennium. The following illustration reflects the distribution of the appropriation with the corresponding expenditure.

REVENUE

Revenue from the District Court and Magistrate Systems are either deposited to the credit of the Commonwealth or forwarded to local Treasurers for use by the locality. The revenue recipient is determined by statutory provision. In FY 83, revenues collected for the Commonwealth increased by 18.5 percent, and reached $38,495,596. In other words, the State collected $0.84 for every dollar expended on these two systems. Local revenues experienced a 9.2 percent rise and totalled $13,814,670.

DISTRIBUTION OF EXPENDITURES

EXPENDITURES

Expenditures for the judiciary during FY 83 totaled $67,654,236, a ten percent increase over FY 82. The majority (71 percent) of these expenses were for personal services (salaries, wages and fringe benefits) and 24 percent represented compensation to court-appointed attorneys and other related court costs (Criminal Fund) and for Involuntary Civil Commitments.

INDIGENT DEFENSE SERVICES

During the most recent fiscal year, the total cost to Virginia taxpayers in providing court assigned counsel for indigents charged with a criminal offense rose to $9 million, a one percent gain over FY82. Of this amount $8.3 million was reimbursed to court appointed attorneys by the Criminal Fund while the remaining costs were incurred by the Public Defender Commission in the operation of the four pilot public defender programs. The distribution of court appointed attorney expenses was 54 percent for district court cases, 42 percent for circuit cases and 4 percent for Supreme Court cases. Of the $4.4 million expended by the district court system nearly ten percent of the expenses were recouped by the courts.

INVOLUNTARY CIVIL COMMITMENTS

Over the past five years, costs for maintaining the involuntary civil commitment process rose from $1,312,881 in FY 79 to $2,992,296 during the last fiscal year. Fiscal year 1983 marked the first year of decline in expenditures, a one percent drop from the previous year's figure of $3,030,871.

Of the $3 million expended in FY 83, $1.5 million, or 50 percent, went towards payment of hospital costs. These costs included charges for room and meals, medication, lab tests and pharmaceutical supplies.

The next largest sum of reimbursements, 20 percent of the total, was made to physicians and psychiatrists. Payments made to attorneys representing persons alleged to be mentally ill accounted for 16 percent or $478,044 of the total expenditure.

The 1984 General Assembly, through its Appropriations Act, directed the Supreme Court and the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation to explore further methods of containing cost, including the development of contractual agreements with health care providers throughout the state. In addition, the legislature mandated that the Supreme Court seek reimbursement of costs related to involuntary commitments from families of persons committed.

JUDICIAL POLICY MAKING BODIES

JUDICIAL COUNCIL

Established in 1930, the Judicial Council is charged with the responsibility for making a continuous study of the organization, rules, and methods of procedure and practice of the judicial system of the Commonwealth. It is responsible also for examining the work accomplished and results produced by the system and its individual offices and courts. A report of the proceedings and recommendations of the Council is made to the General Assembly and to the Supreme Court on an annual basis.

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court is presiding officer for the Council whose membership includes five circuit court judges, one general district court judge, one juvenile and domestic relations district court judge, two attorneys qualified to practice in the Supreme Court and the Chairmen of the Committees for Courts of Justice in the Senate and House of Delegates. Council members are appointed by the Chief Justice and serve for four years, or during his pleasure.

JUDICIAL COUNCIL OF VIRGINIA

Honorable Harry L. Carrico, Chief Justice
Honorable E. Ballard Baker, Judge
Honorable Frederick L. Hoback, Judge
Honorable William H. Hodges, Judge
Honorable Augustus S. Hydrick, Judge
Honorable Fred E. Martin, Jr., Judge
Honorable William W. Sweeney, Judge
Honorable C. Hardaway Marks
Honorable William F. Parkerson, Jr.
Mr. Robert J. McCandlish, Jr.
Mr. John W. Riely
* Honorable Hunter B. Andrews
* Honorable A. L. Philpott
Mr. Robert N. Baldwin, Ex-Officio Secretary

* By invitation of the Chief Justice

The Council is charged with the obligation to study the need for additional circuit court judges. In 1975, procedures for determining the need for additional circuit court judges and for changes in circuit lines were altered by the Council. Prior to this change, cases commenced and population were the primary guidelines. Recognizing the inadequacies of total reliance on these criteria, the Council adopted a dual analysis mechanism.

As the administrative office for the judicial system, the Office of the Executive Secretary was advised that in addition to providing a thorough statistical evaluation of the judicial workload, visits should be conducted to each circuit requesting an additional judge. Court dockets should be reviewed and judges, clerks, commonwealth attorneys, members of the bar, and other such individuals having a knowledge of the court system in that circuit should be interviewed.

The Council concluded that additional judges should be authorized in a circuit whenever all procedures short of adding a judge have been exhausted; whenever the administrative efficiency of the court was at a high level; and whenever the existing judges were working to maximum capacity and yet were still unable to handle the caseload in the expeditious fashion desired by the bar and general public. The only way to assure the sound, effective and speedy administration of justice was to insure that sufficient judicial resources were available.

JUDICIAL CONFERENCE OF VIRGINIA

The Judicial Conference of Virginia was organized to discuss and consider means and methods of improving the administration of justice in the Commonwealth. Active members include the Chief Justice and Justices of the Supreme Court of Virginia, all judges of the circuit courts and all retired justices and judges of such courts. There is also an honorary membership consisting of the Attorney General, the Chairmen of the Courts of Justice Committees of the Senate and House of Delegates, the presidents and secretaries of the Virginia State Bar, the Virginia Bar Association, the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association and the Virginia Association of Defense Lawyers, the deans of the law departments of the College of William and Mary, University of Richmond, University of Virginia, Washington and Lee University and George Mason University, and four attorneys appointed by the Chief Justice. The Chief Justice serves as president of the Judicial Conference. Six circuit court judges are elected to serve on the Conference's executive committee.

Specifically, the duties and responsibilities of the Conference include:

- Advising and cooperating with the Supreme Court of Virginia in the improvement of practice and procedure in the courts of the Commonwealth;
- Reporting to the General Assembly such findings and recommendations as the Conference may adopt;
- Compiling, studying, discussing and disseminating to its members information of interest to the judiciary;
- Planning continuing judicial educational programs;
- Advising and cooperating with the bar associations, law schools and other groups on projects designed to improve the administration of justice; and
- Gathering, studying and disseminating information relating to the public, press educational institutions and other such organizations as may be interested in the work and functions of the courts.

Much of the work of the Judicial Conference is accomplished through its seven permanent committees whose members are appointed by the Chief Justice with the advice of the executive committee. Standing committees and their responsibilities are as follows:

1. Nominations, Resolutions, and Memorials

   To consider, evaluate and make recommendations regarding resolutions; nominate members of the Executive Committee; and prepare appropriate memorials.
2. Judicial Education

   To plan the educational content of Judicial Conference meetings and specialized programs of interest to the judiciary, and to assist in the orientation of new judges.
3. Judicial Administration

   To consider means and methods of improving the administrative functions of the Courts; attain greater uniformity in procedures and efficiency; and study the effective management of Court calendars.
4. Information and Public Relations

   To explain and interpret matters concerning the law, the legal system, and the administration of justice to the public; and disseminate information on the functions of the Courts.
5. Judicial Conduct

   To distribute to members information relating to judicial conduct and to consider inquiries concerning the propriety of judicial conduct.
6. Judicial Compensation, Retirement and Insurance

   To consider programs affecting benefits consistent with judicial responsibility; and consider proposed changes.
7. Probation, Parole and Corrections

   To study and consider improvements in probation, parole and corrections as they affect the Courts.

COMMITTEE ON DISTRICT COURTS

The General Assembly created the Committee on District Courts in 1972 to assist the Chief Justice in the administrative supervision of Virginia's unified court system. Nine members including the Chairmen of the Committees for Courts of Justice in the Senate and House of Delegates, two members of each of the Courts of Justice Committees appointed by the respective chairman, a Circuit Court Judge, General District Court Judge and a Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court Judge, are appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the Chief Justice.

By statute, the Committee on District Courts has been given the responsibility for fulfilling the following duties:

- Reporting annually to the General Assembly on the number of judges needed and the district for which they should be authorized.
- Certifying that the filling of a vacancy occurring in the office of any judge of any district is or is not necessary.
- Authorizing the appointment of substitute judges.
- Authorizing the establishment of district court clerks' offices.
- Fixing salary classification schedules for court personnel.
- Establishing vacation and sick leave policies for district court judges.
- Establishing a sick leave policy for district court personnel and full-time magistrates.
- Establishing guidelines and determining the necessity for the employment of substitute judges, clerks, deputy clerks and all other personnel of the district courts and authorizing the employment of such personnel.
- Authorizing the appointment of personnel to serve one or more district courts within any district.
- Authorizing clerk and deputy clerks of the circuit court of a political subdivision to serve as clerk and deputy clerk of one or more district courts within the political subdivision.
- Authorizing the number of magistrates in each district.
- Authorizing the appointment of substitute magistrates.
- Fixing annual salaries of magistrates.
- Performing such other duties as may be conferred by law and necessary for the effective administration of justice.

JUDICIAL CONFERENCE OF VIRGINIA FOR DISTRICT COURTS

The Judicial Conference of Virginia for District Courts has similar responsibilities for the district court system as has the Judicial Conference of Virginia for the circuit courts. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court also serves as president of this Conference. Membership includes all active judges of the general district and juvenile and domestic relations district courts. Honorary members are the Attorney General, Chairmen of the Courts of Justice Committees of the Senate and House of Delegates, the president and secretary of the Virginia State Bar and the president and secretary of the Virginia Bar Association. Seven district court judges are elected by the Conference to serve on the Executive Committee. The 1981 General Assembly added the presidents and secretaries of the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association and the Virginia Association of Defense Attorneys to the honorary membership of this Conference.

The Conference meets at least once a year to consider means of improving the administration of justice in Virginia. The Conference's committee structure is similar in duties and responsibilities to those of the Judicial Conference of Virginia. A list of the committees and their membership follows the membership listing of the Committee on District Courts.

ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT SERVICES AND ACTIVITIES

As the administrative arm of the Virginia court system, the Office of the Executive Secretary assists the Chief Justice in executing the policies and programs of the judicial branch of government. The primary mission of the Office is to assist the courts in improving the quality and efficiency of the administration of justice in Virginia. Generally, this objective is accomplished by introducing effective business management practices and updating and standardizing the legal procedures utilized by the judicial system. Eight departments comprise the Office of the Executive Secretary (OES). Significant activities and accomplishments of the Office during 1983 are described below.

ASSISTANT EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

The Assistant Executive Secretary has a number of responsibilities, but the primary ones are: (1) acting as a central person to process judicial assignments at both the circuit and district court levels; (2) reviewing and processing reports for the Supreme Court on attorneys seeking admission to the Virginia Bar by reciprocity; (3) conducting background investigations and maintaining the list of state administrative Hearing Officers; and (4) assisting with the Medical Malpractice Review Panel system.

CIRCUIT TOTAL	337
District
Assistance (§16.1-69.35)	195
Disqualification (§16.1-69.35)	39
DISTRICT TOTAL	234

During 1983 the Assistant Executive Secretary issued 571 designations for the Supreme Court. This total is the highest ever generated and represents a 10 percent increase over 1982. Of the total number of designations issued, 337 (59 percent) were for circuit courts and 234 (41 percent) were district court assignments.

Ninety-one foreign attorney applications also were received during the year. The majority (89) were filed pursuant to the Court's Rule 1A:1 dealing with general licensure. Sixteen new Hearing Officers were added to the state-wide list maintained by the Executive Secretary. This brings to 117 the number of Hearing Officers available for appointment to hearings under the Administrative Process Act. Forty-six Hearing Officers have been added since 1981, and this represents a 65 percent increase.

In 1983 a total of 168 Medical Malpractice Review Panels were assigned, and this reflects an increase of 25 assignments (18 percent) over the previous year.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

Education continued in its austere mode during 1983. There was no out-of-state education program and only the semi-annual conferences, magistrate orientation and certification, and clerk basic training were conducted. The training year started in March with the first of three Magistrate Certification Courses, all of which were successful. A total of thirty-nine magistrates were certified during the year. Next came the Pre-Bench Orientation for newly elected judges. Ten Circuit, five General District and four Juvenile and Domestic Relations judges attended. A new course was offered to the J&DR judges: nine hours of instruction in Juvenile Law and Procedure conducted by Professor Robert E. Shepherd, Jr. of the University of Richmond, T. C. Williams School of Law, and Judge Arlin F. Ruby from Richmond's Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court. This course was well received and will be continued in future Pre-Bench programs.

The spring conference for District Court judges was split in 1983 because the National Conference of Juvenile and Family Court Judges held its annual meeting in Richmond. The juvenile judges attended this conference and acted as hosts for the attendees from across the nation. Our judges' attendance was supported through the education budget as if they had been attending the normal in-state judicial conference. From all accounts, this meeting was a great success for both our judges and the other judges. The General District judges gathered for their conference in Charlottesville.

In September, the office was advised that there was approximately $11,000 still remaining in the grant from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention from 1982 that had been carried over for use before the end of the federal fiscal year. Juvenile and domestic relations judges who had not had an opportunity to attend the "basic school" in Reno were contacted and the department arranged for them to go to the October class. The $11,000 was evenly divided between the ten judges who were able to attend, so that all tuition, activity and lodging fees, and most of their travel and other expenses were paid from the grant.

The Department of Education Services took on some additional duties during the year. As a result of the Judicial Council's interest in assuring that the public becomes better informed about the judicial system, the department will expand to responsibilities in the area of Public Education and Information. All pamphlets concerning the courts which are distributed to the public will be handled through Educational Services. Staff of the department also have prepared proposed goals, projects and tasks for the Judicial Council to review. If endorsed, these will be published and distributed to judicial system personnel to guide them in educating and informing the public. A special area of interest is better communication between the news media and the courts. Therefore, proposed guidelines for release of information to the media have been developed. The guidelines have been sent from the Judicial Council's Committee on Public Information to the Council and to the Judicial Council Conference for their review and recommendations.

The secretary in Educational Services has been selected to be the Word Processing Coordinator for the Office of the Executive Secretary. In this role she is responsible for updating and implementing word processing procedures; working one-on-one with each new employee to insure that adequate training is received; developing specialized training procedures as necessary; assisting word processing users in word processing capabilities for special applications; performing weekly floppy diskette archives to serve as backup to the Integrated Control Unit; conducting user meetings; maintaining the inventory and ordering supplies; coordinating new software installation between vendor and users; and trouble-shooting machine problems.

Finally the department is in the midst of a special project to do a task analysis of both the Magistrate and Clerk's duties. Two Task Analysis Committees have been appointed and are working with staff to develop lists of all activities and tasks done by magistrates and clerks. These lists will also include the knowledge, skills and abilities required to perform the activities and tasks. Completion of these lists will permit development of a more valid screening and training instruments for these personnel, as well as to identify existing sources for their training.

FISCAL SERVICES

During the year, the Department of Fiscal Services processed 95,988 vouchers and 5,633 purchase orders and requisitions; paid 2,002 full-time, part-time, and substitute and wage employees; developed and submitted the Judicial System budget for the 1984-86 biennium, participated in the Department of Accounts pilot project to test a new combination purchase order/invoice and in the Division of Purchases and Supply's pilot project to test new travel procedures, and developed and conducted the purchasing training portion of the Clerk's Basic Orientation program.

The Department also was involved in the development of a new Financial Information Reporting System (FIRS).The project was divided into two phases. The first phase, which has been given priority, will provide automated assistance in the processing of payments to vendors for services in connection with involuntary mental commitments. This first phase is designed to provide greater control over the payments and to make available more detailed and timely financial information. It is scheduled for completion in late April 1984. The second phase of FIRS, which is designed to improve the accuracy, timeliness and usefulness of financial reports, is scheduled for completion in late 1984.

More than 5,600 orders for forms and supplies were processed by the purchases and supply section with an average turnaround time of three days. During FY 1983, twenty-five new forms were added to warehouse stock. This brings the total to 350 forms. The forms are used by court system personnel, attorneys, hospitals, laboratories, public schools, special justices, and the general public. Plans are still underway to move the warehouse operation to the Supreme Court Building basement. The project is feasible, and implementation is awaiting funding.

JUDICIAL PLANNING

Within the Office of the Executive Secretary, the Judicial Planning Department is responsible for overseeing the implementation of the 1983-86 Comprehensive Judicial Plan. Following the Judicial Council's adoption of the Plan in late 1982, the department prepared an executive summary of its contents which was distributed to all courts (as well as legislative and executive branch agencies) in mid-1983. Then, work was begun on several studies and action items mandated by the Plan. Research assistance was provided to the advisory committees undertaking the indigency standards project, the family court study, and revision of the Circuit Court Caseload Reporting System, among others. A summary of the results of these projects begins on page 15.

In addition, staff completed a study for the Judicial Council regarding the need for a cost of living differential for judges serving in Northern Virginia circuits, began work on an examination of calendar management practices in Virginia courts, and provided a report to the 1984 General Assembly which projected costs for expanding the public defender system within the state.

In further support of the Plan as well as the Office's commitment to providing effective administrative services to the courts, the department coordinated the development of the yearly "management" plan for the Executive Secretary's Office. Following adjournment of the General Assembly, staff compiled a list of all legislation requiring action by the administrative office and/or the courts. Projects from the Comprehensive Plan also were listed along with on-going services provided by the office, such as conducting technical assistance visits or educational conferences. The lists of projects to be completed within the year are then reviewed within each OES department and objectives are set forth with estimations of time requirements and resources needed for each. By establishing such a plan, each department has a full picture of the work ahead for at least one year. In 1983, an automated system was created to track the status of the plan. A user's manual also was produced to accompany the planning and project monitoring system.

The Planning Department continues to write and publish numerous management information reports such as the Annual Report and Judicial Council Report to the General Assembly and Supreme Court of Virginia. More than 1,000 copies of these reports are sent to the courts, local and state agencies, the public and the media. Also 37 workload reports were prepared for use by the Supreme Court, Judicial Council and Committee on District Courts in determining the need for additional judgeships and certifying vacancies. A study of the impact of altering circuit boundaries between the 29th Circuit and 27th Circuit was also completed.

Finally, a new information pamphlet for citizens was created by planning staff and published in 1983. Entitled Virginia Courts in Brief, the booklet provides an overview of Virginia's judicial branch of government with explanations concerning the jurisdiction of each court. Staff worked with representatives of the State Department of Education to provide the pamphlets to the social studies departments of every school in the Commonwealth.

LEGAL RESEARCH

During 1983, the Legal Research Department continued to perform its ongoing research services while expanding its records, forms and publications efforts. A significant portion of these latter efforts was devoted to joint efforts between the courts and other entities to address mutual concerns.

Because of the impact that records management can have on courts, two major efforts were undertaken during 1983. The first effort involved district court records. Since 1976, the lack of a comprehensive, consistent package of statutory provisions governing all district courts records has been recognized. In late 1982, this department and an advisory group of judges and clerks developed the desired records legislation which was approved by the Committee on District Courts and introduced in 1983. After its enactment as Chapter 499 of the 1983 Acts of Assembly, this department provided further assistance to the Technical Assistance Department in its development of the standards and administrative procedures to be followed beginning January 1, 1985.

The second records management effort involved the need for developing a set of records retention provisions to purge evidence in a case as soon as its usefulness in a case had ceased. Beginning with the responses received for the 1977 comprehensive judicial plan, the circuit court clerks identified the lack of storage space and similar evidence retention problems as being a high priority concern. At the same time, there was a universal recognition of the need for an evidence preservation mechanism during the time that the evidence would be needed in a case. Currently, there exists a hodgepodge of statutes dealing with the disposal of selected types of evidence, such as weapons and illicit drugs; however, there is no comprehensive statutory mechanism for dealing with all types of evidence. To meet this problem, a proposed evidence retention mechanism was drafted through this department, which was amended after being examined by a review panel of circuit court clerks and district court clerks. Following revision, this proposal was sent to the Judicial Administration Committee of the Judicial Conference of Virginia for further action.

During 1983, several major developments in case forms were made, most of which were the results of cooperative efforts between the Office of the Executive Secretary and other state agencies. The change with the largest impact was the development of a Virginia Uniform Summons for issuance by law enforcement officers in both traffic and criminal cases. Previously, the only statewide arrest summons issued by law enforcement officers was the Uniform Traffic Summons. The need for a universal arrest summons for all types of violations, not just traffic, has long been recognized. Through the collective efforts of the Office of the Attorney General, the Division of Motor Vehicles, the Virginia State Police, and the Office of the Executive Secretary, such a universal summons was developed. Legislation was introduced in 1984 to require its use in all instances in which a law enforcement officer issues an arrest summons, expanding the current statutory requirement that a uniform arrest summons be used in traffic cases. Its use will become mandatory on July 1, 1984.

Of similar statewide impact was the development of a set of forms for use in cases filed or processed under the Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA) in response to the need for statewide forms that addressed many problems unique to this type of case. This project was undertaken by a panel composed of juvenile and domestic relations district court judges and clerks, staff members from the Office of the Executive Secretary and from the Bureau of Support Enforcement. After introduction of these new forms, this department provided basic training in the use of these forms for juvenile and domestic relations district court clerks.

In a similar vein, this department worked with the Department of Labor and Industry to develop a civil summons for processing occupational safety and health cases. In addition this department worked with representatives of the garnishees and judgment creditors in revising the garnishment statutes to simplify the garnishment summons and to improve the processing of such cases.

Since the beginning of the development of uniform district court case forms in 1977, a dedicated group of district court judges, clerks and a chief magistrate have served well as members of the Forms Advisory Committee. With the retirement of one member and a job change within the system of another member, this committee was revamped in structure and increased in number to provide additional sources of comments while retaining the experience of the original members.

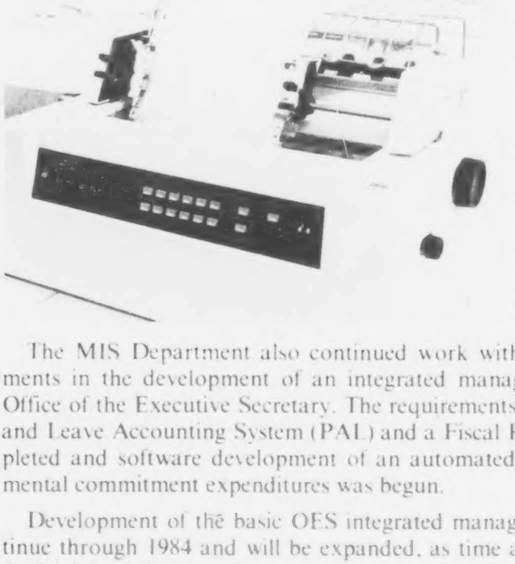
The department also worked with consultants employed by the Division of Support Enforcement in the development of a support enforcement information booklet written for use by the public, especially by those individuals entitled to support or their custodians. The need for such information in easily understood language was first addressed statewide by the courts in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court Information Pamphlet, which was developed and distributed in 1980. Recognizing that more detailed information was needed, the Office of the Executive Secretary and the Division of Support Enforcement decided in 1983 to develop a more detailed booklet to explain the judicial and administrative support enforcement processes and to give support obligees some general information as to how to establish and collect support. This booklet is expected to be published in 1984.

During the year, staff participated in numerous studies or projects, including a jury management study (discussed elsewhere), a project for the development of risk assessment mechanism for use in bail determination by magistrates, and the role of magistrates in federal criminal arrest and bail situations.

The Court Legal Research Assistance Project, which is administered through this department, has provided case research services for circuit court judges since 1979 through the use of a law clerk pool in Richmond. This project is one of a few such programs in the nation using young attorneys on a pool basis. In October of 1984, the director of this program was the principal speaker on the use of statewide law clerk pools for trial court judges at an annual program of the National Center for State Courts Northeastern Regional Office

MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS

The year 1983 saw the Management Information Systems Department actively engaged in the expansion of the Courts Automated Information Systems (CAIS). All of the courts in the pilot region (the 23rd Judicial District) had initiated automated operations and three were completely operational with the support payment system. Four other pilot region courts had completed training and were commencing parallel operation of the financial management system while the eighth and final pilot region court was completing training. In addition, two other J&DR courts (Alexandria and Henrico) converted to the automated support system while seven Tidewater courts began preliminary training and preparations prior to converting to automated operations in the first quarter of 1984.



In addition to adding courts to the automated CAIS network, MIS continued with the development of the Case Management System. The Judicial Systems Advisory Committee conducted a system design review of the Case Management System and gave its approval to begin software production. System testing is scheduled to begin in April 1984 with installation in the pilot court four months later in August.

The MIS Department also continued work with the Personnel and Fiscal Departments in the development of an integrated management information system for the Office of the Executive Secretary. The requirements definitions for a Personnel, Payroll and Leave Accounting System (PAL) and a Fiscal Reporting System (FIRS) were completed and software development of an automated accounting system for involuntary mental commitment expenditures was begun.

Development of the basic OES integrated management information system will continue through 1984 and will be expanded, as time and resources permit, to include the Judicial Statistical Systems.

PERSONNEL

During 1983 the Personnel Department's concentration was in the area of staffing. With rising caseloads and a reduced personnel budget, courts and magistrate offices faced heavy pressures in meeting workload demands. To meet budget reductions, vacancies could not be filled until $5600 in salary had been saved. Alternatives to filling positions have been explored with mixed success. In some areas magistrates and clerks offices provide support to each other as time permits. In others, the workload volume in both offices has made this impossible. Under another measure, individual offices within a district provide assistance to another feeling extreme workload pressures. The use of volunteers in some areas has been beneficial. A series of seminars addressing the development and management of a volunteer program has been developed and will continue during 1984.

In attempting to provide increased services to staff of the Judicial Branch, the possibility of obtaining an employee-paid group dental insurance plan was explored. It was determined that this would not be possible since insurance carriers do not provide wholly employee paid programs. With the Commonwealth's budgetary problems, it is not possible to obtain State funding at this time.

An Appeals Policy and Procedure has been developed for the Magistrate System and is currently under review. The proposal is similar to the current one for District Court Personnel. Under the policy, a magistrate with a grievance first would attempt to resolve it informally with the Chief Magistrate. The next steps are to formally file the appeal with the Chief General District Court Judge, if supervision has thus been delegated, and then to the Chief Circuit Court Judge. If the problems are still not resolved, the proposal provides further appeal to a standing panel appointed by the Committee on District Courts for final action. The recommended composition of the panel is one circuit judge with experience as a magistrate appointing authority, one general district judge with experience as a magistrate supervising authority, and two magistrates, one of whom may be a chief magistrate. The fifth member would be an individual without ties to the Judicial Branch of government. Further discussions on the proposed Magistrate Appeals Policy will be held during 1984.

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

More than 400 technical assistance visits to district courts were conducted by staff of the department in 1983. This included 21 "management analysis" visits which provide a more comprehensive review of all aspects of the operation of individual courts. These types of visits usually also involve staff from the Personnel Department, who evaluate position classifications and work assignments.

In addition, the Department participated in the design of the automated case management sub-system of the CAIS system. A result of this participation will be a total redesign of the dockets and the caseload reporting system in 1985. The revised system will eliminate subjective evaluation of caseload and ensure a more uniform method of statistical analysis.

Week-long orientation sessions were conducted for 41 new district court clerks and magistrates. These sessions are designed to give an introduction to the clerk or magistrate system through lecture and workshop experience. On-site training also was provided for some new clerks and magistrates throughout the state.

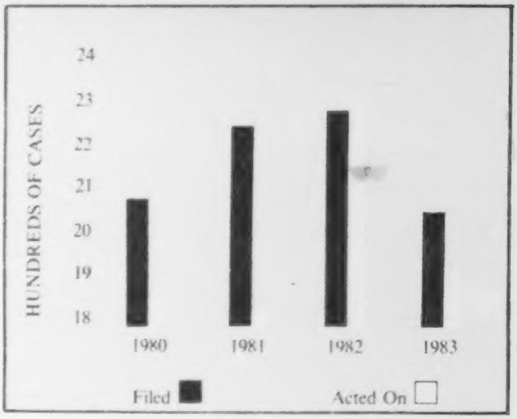
Studies were undertaken in 1983 concerning record retention in district courts. Case filing systems were developed in order to provide the courts with information they would need to prepare their 1984 budgets. Although record retention does not become effective until January 1, 1985, all the courts must obtain the funds and equipment during 1984.

Another study was made to determine the level of participation in the Tax Set-Off Debt Collection Act. This Act was passed by the General Assembly in 1981 to step up collection of delinquent debts owed to the Commonwealth. Training for the courts will be conducted in 1984 in order to prepare them to begin participation on January 1, 1985 in conjunction with records retention.

THE SUPREME COURT

The Supreme Court of Virginia is 204 years old, and its history could easily fill many volumes. Founded on August 30, 1779, The Court is one of the oldest continuous judicial bodies in the United States. It is now housed in its first permanent building at the Old Federal Reserve Bank Building in Richmond, having previously occupied eight other facilities during its first two centuries.

SUPREME COURT PETITIONS FILED AND ACTED ON 1980-1983



Although the Supreme Court possesses both original and appellate jurisdiction, its primary function is to review decisions of lower courts from which appeals have been allowed. The Supreme Court allows only discretionary appeals except in cases involving the State Corporation Commission, the disbarment of an attorney, and review of the death penalty. The Court's original jurisdiction is limited to cases of habeas corpus, mandamus and prohibition, and it also considers matters filed by the Judicial Inquiry and Review Commission related to censure, retirement, or removal of judges.

The Supreme Court meets for five-day sessions beginning in October each year and continuing every seventh week until the completion of its June docket. No session is held in July, but the Court meets in a three-day session in late August or early September. During the recess periods between sessions, the Justices conduct legal research in cases awaiting decision, draft and review opinions, study cases in which petitions for appeal have been filed, conduct hearings on petitions for appeal, and attend to numerous administrative duties. A law clerk and secretary assist each Justice.

In addition to its appellate functions of examining results reached in lower courts and of redefining and developing the body of state law, the Supreme Court is also responsible for the general supervision of the entire Virginia Judicial System. The Chief Justice serves as administrative head of the system, and he is charged with overseeing its efficient and effective operation.

The year 1983 was quite busy for the Supreme Court of Virginia. It was marked by the retirement of Justice William Carrington Thompson who had served as a member since February 1, 1980. Justice Thompson's replacement is John Charles Thomas, the first black ever appointed to the high court and currently its youngest member.

As 1983 came to a close, the Supreme Court of Virginia remained hopeful that the intermediate appellate court initially approved during the 1983 General Assembly session would pass a second confirming vote at the 1984 session. By action of the 1984 General Assembly, the Intermediate Appellate Court was approved and will become effective January 1, 1985. The Court's caseload continued to exceed that of other Supreme Courts in states without intermediate courts. Justices continued to lack sufficient time to refine and develop the law because of the volume of error-correcting cases which they must review.

The Clerk of the Supreme Court reported that 2,073 petitions for appeal and original jurisdiction had been filed during 1983. This figure was somewhat less than the 2,290 initiated in the previous year. Even with this decline, the Court's workload has increased 65 percent during the past ten years.

By the close of 1983, the Court had acted on 1,922 cases. This activity was the second highest level throughout the last twenty-five years of Court history. Of the 1,659 appellate cases, 56 percent (or 932) were criminal; 41 percent (or 683) were civil; 2 percent (or 33) were habeas corpus involving civil cases, and 1 percent (11) represented granted appeals remanded to trial costs. Original jurisdiction case numbered 263, down from the 423 reported in 1982. Writs of Habeas Corpus accounted for 74 percent of these actions (194 cases); Writs of Mandamus represented 25 percent (65 cases), and Writs of Prohibition amounted to 1 percent (4 cases) of the total.

In 1983, five percent or 106 of the total petitions filed were withdrawn before being acted upon. This percentage has been consistent since 1981.

The Court granted 273 petitions during the year, down from the 302 granted in 1982, but consistent with the 271 granted in 1980 and 1981. Of the cases disposed of during 1983, 171 were by Written Opinions and 105 through Orders. Of the cases decided by Opinion, 52 percent affirmed the judgment of the lower court.

Detailed information relating to the workload of the Supreme Court can be found on the following tables and in Appendix C.

THE CIRCUIT COURTS

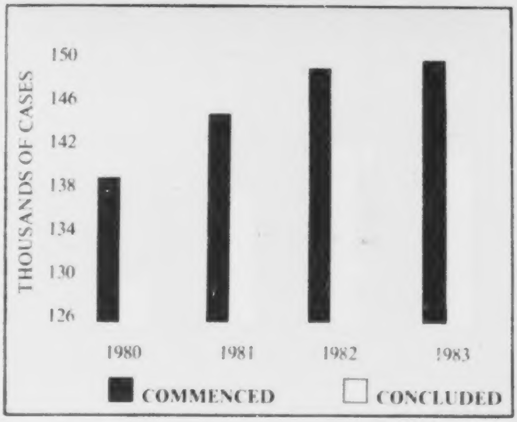
The Circuit Court is the only court with general jurisdiction in the Commonwealth of Virginia. During 1983, 120 judges, 122 locally elected clerks and approximately 725 support staff served the thirty-one judicial circuits.

This court has concurrent jurisdiction with the general district court in civil cases involving claims between $1,000 and $7,000 with the exception of attachments in which the claim must exceed $20,000. They have exclusive jurisdiction over all equity matters such as adoptions, divorces, and land title disputes.

Circuit courts have jurisdiction of proceedings by quo warranto and to insure writs of mandamus, prohibition, and certiorari to all tribunals. They must also issue writs of mandamus in all matters or proceedings arising from or pertaining to the actions of the board of supervisors or other local governing bodies. The appellate jurisdiction extends to all cases, civil and criminal, in which appeal may, as provided by law, be taken from the judgment of any inferior tribunal.

Circuit courts reported commencing 149,583 cases during the year, an increase of less than one-half percent over 1982's caseload. During the last two decades, the commenced caseload of the courts has grown by 147 percent, while the number of judges has risen from 75 in 1962 to 120 in 1983, a 60 percent increase. On an average each judge commenced 1,247 cases in 1983. In rural circuits, this measure was 1,161 while urban judges averaged 1,311 commenced cases each. The year 1983 marked the first decrease in caseload per circuit court judge during the last sixteen years.

CIRCUIT COURT CASELOAD
CASES COMMENCED AND CONCLUDED
1980—1983



Compared with their 1982 caseload, the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit registered the greatest increase in commenced cases in Virginia, growing by 12.9 percent. At the close of 1983, 18 of the state's 31 circuits reported a decline in commenced cases. The range of the decreases was a one-tenth percent drop recorded by the Twenty-Fifth to a 13 percent decline in the caseload of the Seventh Judicial Circuit.

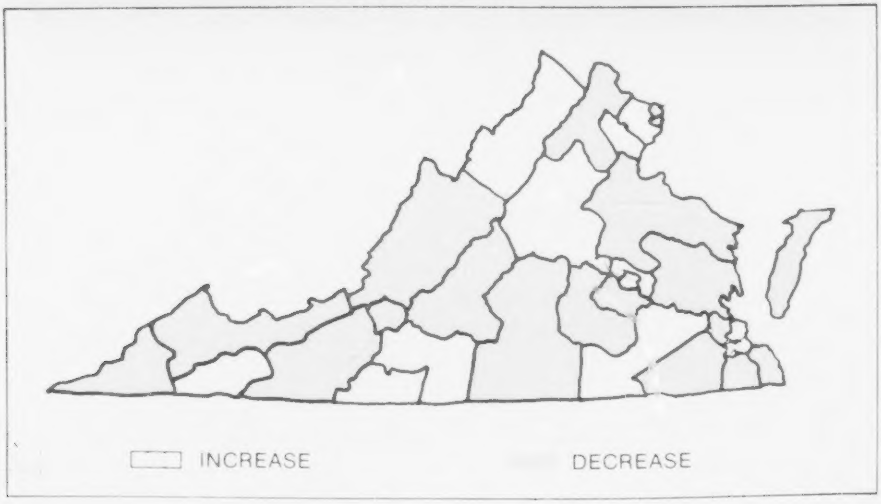
1983	120	149,583	141,636	153,624	1,247

By the close of 1983, 141,636 cases were concluded by the courts. This number was somewhat lower than the 142,427 reported in the previous year. The 1983 concluded caseload continued to be less than the number of cases commenced. This has been the trend since 1966, and therefore, the number of pending cases has constantly increased.

Total pending cases for the circuit courts was approximated at 153,624. This measure does not necessarily indicate a burden upon court time, nor does it reveal significant delay in case processing. Whether out of preference or strategy, some cases simply "mature" on the docket until a more favorable time. These cases may not represent an immediate demand on judicial resources but merely a deferred normal expenditure of bench time. All court caseloads contain a natural level of pending cases.

On January 1, 1984, a revised caseload reporting system was implemented in the circuit courts. Among the major changes made to the system were the development of more concise definitions and a comprehensive listing of case types to be reported and the expansion of jury trial data to include the actual number of juries empanelled by each court. For the first time, information on the number of defendants involved in criminal cases will be reported by each court.

CIRCUIT COURT
CHANGE IN COMMENCED CASES
1982-1983

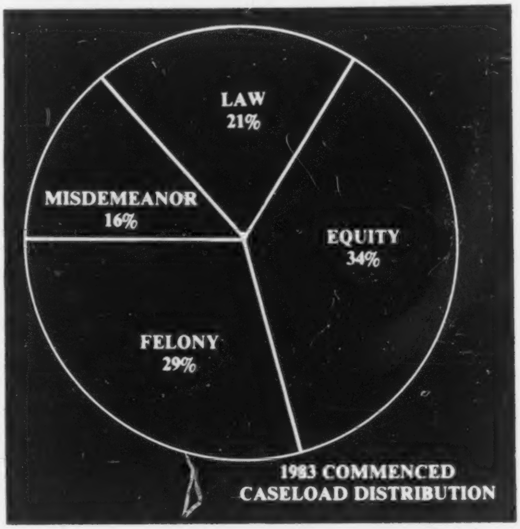


CIVIL

Increasing by less than one-half percent, civil filings numbered 82,293 for 1983. The statewide civil caseload reflected a distribution weighted more heavily with equity cases (62%) than law cases (38%). Of the total civil caseload, 89 percent were placed on the docket as an initial filing; 7 percent were reported as a supplemental petition, and 4 percent were initiated due to other circumstances.

Among the 31 circuits, the Nineteenth recorded the largest civil caseload with 11,248 commenced cases for 1983. The Fourth's caseload of 7,152 ranked second highest throughout the state. In comparison, 71 percent of all circuits recorded a civil caseload of less than 2,500 cases.

Concluded cases totaled 75,815 for the year, a gain of 871 over 1982. Of the cases concluded, 27 percent were settled or dismissed prior to trial; 20 percent were concluded as a result of a decree on depositions; in 16 percent, a judgment was entered following the judicial review of a Commissioner in Chancery's report and recommendations; and in 14 percent of the cases, conclusion was reached following a judge trial with witnesses. Jury trials were utilized in less than two percent of the cases. Approximately one-tenth of the concluded cases were purged under either the two or five year rule. Nearly four fifths of the concluded civil cases reach disposition within twenty-four months of filing — 65 percent of which were concluded within the first twelve months.



1983 COMMENCED
CASELOAD DISTRIBUTION

CRIMINAL

During 1983, 67,290 criminal cases were initiated in Virginia's circuit courts. This level reflected a less than one percent (406 cases) rise over the number reported in 1982. The majority (63%) of the cases involved felony charges; misdemeanors constituted 36 percent, and Habeas Corpus Post Conviction cases represented 1 percent of the total commenced caseload. Statewide, 56 percent of all criminal cases began as an "indictment, presentment, or information"; 32 percent involved appeals from the district court system and 10 percent were placed on the dockets as reinstatements. It is interesting to note that general district appeals increased by three percent in 1983, while appeals from J&DR courts decreased by twice that amount.

Throughout the Commonwealth, the Fourth Judicial Circuit reported the largest criminal caseload with 7,794 cases. The Nineteenth ranked second with 4,994. Nine circuits reported criminal caseloads in excess of 2,500 cases during 1983. In comparison, the smallest number of criminal cases (841) was recorded by the Twentieth Judicial Circuit.

By the close of the year, the 31 circuits noted that 65,821 criminal cases had been concluded. Of this number, 43 percent reached disposition by a guilty plea prior to trial; 25 percent were concluded by a judge trial with witnesses; and 13 percent were nol prossed by either the Commonwealth's attorney or local prosecutor. An additional eight percent were concluded due to being dismissed or withdrawn prior to trial. Juries were utilized to conclude six percent of cases during 1983. Disposition was achieved within five months of filing in 84 percent of the concluded criminal cases.

JURY TRIALS

In 1983, the circuit courts reported that 3,809 criminal cases and 1,701 civil cases were concluded by a jury trial. A total of 5,510 jury trials for 1983 was 2 percent lower than the 5,595 reported in 1982. Decreases were noted for all case types, save misdemeanors. The number of misdemeanor cases concluded by a jury rose from 685 in 1982 to 773 in 1983.

Jury utilization, however, remained consistent during 1983, in that nearly four percent of the total caseload involved a jury trial. Slightly more than two percent (1,701 cases) of the concluded civil cases involved a jury trial while six percent (3,809 cases) of the criminal cases were concluded by a jury. On an average, 5.8 jury trials were held for every 100 concluded law cases and 7.3 for felony cases. The ratio for concluded misdemeanor cases was 3.3:100 in 1983.

Statewide, judges presided over an average of 46 jury trials each. The range of this measure was a low of 15 jury trials per judge in the Eighth Judicial Circuit to an average of 112 jury trials per judge in the Third. The number of days Virginia judges spent presiding over jury trials fell from 5,461 in 1982 to 5,341 in 1983. Criminal cases required 53 percent of the total jury days.

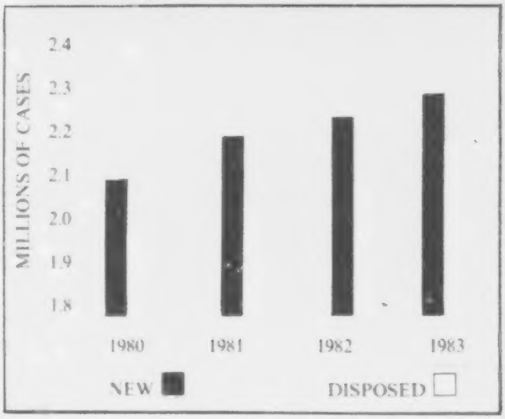
THE DISTRICT COURTS

The Virginia District Court System is composed of 205 courts classified as either general district, juvenile and domestic relations, or combined. During 1983, 169 judges served in the Commonwealth's 32 judicial districts and were supported by 892 persons working in clerks' offices.

General district court cases are categorized as civil, criminal or traffic. The court's civil jurisdiction extends to suits involving amounts of money up to $7,000 and in attachment cases, $20,000. Cases in which a person is charged with a misdemeanor are decided in this court; however, only preliminary hearings are held for felony cases. Jurisdiction extends also to all cases in which an adult is charged with a traffic offense.

Juvenile and domestic relations district courts have exclusive original jurisdiction over all matters and proceedings involving: delinquents; juveniles accused of traffic violations; children in need of services; children who have been subjected to abuse or neglect; adults accused of child abuse or of offenses against members of their own family; adults involved in disputes concerning support, visitation or custody of a child; abandonment of children; foster care and entrustment agreements; court-ordered rehabilitation services; and court consent for certain medical treatments.

DISTRICT COURT CASELOAD
NEW AND DISPOSED CASES
1980-1983



Virginia's district courts reported that 2,309,871 new cases were initiated during 1983. Growing by 4 percent, the rate of increase, as captured by the current uniform docketing system, appears to be stabilizing from a high of 9 percent recorded between 1979 and 1980. The 99.75 judges of the general district courts handled 91 percent of the district's new cases. The balance of 210,065 new cases were heard by the 69.25 juvenile and domestic relations district court judges.

District courts also reported that 3.4 million hearings were scheduled on the courts' docket during the past year. Of this number, 83 percent, or 2,797,752 hearings involved actual judge time. Statewide, an average of 1.21 hearings were held for each new case.

During 1983, nearly 2.2 million cases were concluded by the district courts. The rate of growth of these cases was slightly lower than the change in new cases, three percent. Statewide 0.94 cases were concluded for every new case initiated.

 Implementation of the Uniform Docketing and Caseload Reporting System

General District Courts

During calendar year 1983, 2,099,806 cases were initiated in Virginia's general district courts, nearly 80,000 more than in the previous year. Clerks reported that approximately three million hearings were placed on the docket throughout 1983. Of this number, 81 percent, or 2,398,873 hearings, required judge involvement. On the average, 1.14 hearings were held for each new case, a ratio slightly lower than in previous years. By the close of the year, 1,990,997 cases reached disposition, an increase of three percent over 1982.

Increasing caseloads were noted in 17 districts, with the greatest change reported as a 19 percent growth in the Twelfth's new caseload. Of the districts reporting declining numbers, the Thirtieth noted the largest decrease (-9%).

Judges of the general district courts each averaged 21,051 new cases and 24,049 hearings. Urban judges averaged 24,493 new cases and 28,921 hearings each while the rural judge measures were 17,362 and 18,827, respectively.

Decreasing by three percent, criminal new cases numbered 341,119 for the year and represented 16 percent of the total general district caseload. Criminal hearings totaled 649,458, also a drop from the number held in 1982. However, the 1983 hearing per case ratio rose to an average of 1.90 hearings for each new criminal case — the highest ratio within the general district caseload. The range of new criminal cases was a low of 2,301 cases on the Eastern Shore to 40,200 in Norfolk.

The statewide average criminal caseload per judge was 3,420 new cases and 6,511 hearings, a decrease from 1982 when these measures were 3,553 and 6,652, respectively.

New traffic cases rose significantly by ten percent and reached an all time high of 1,152,699. These cases constituted the bulk of the general district caseload, 55 percent. The courts also reported 1,028,758 hearings and 1,102,189 dispositions. The Nineteenth Judicial District reported the highest traffic caseload throughout the state with 125,838 new cases and 101,319 hearings. The increase in new traffic cases was accompanied by a four percent rise in hearings. Hearings waived totaled 439,866, up 16 percent from 1982. The ratio of hearings to new traffic cases, 0.89, was indicative of the large number of traffic hearings being waived when compared to the 1977 measure of 1.14. The ratio of dispositions to new cases was 0.96 and consistent with previous year figures.

On the average, Virginia's general district judges presided over 11,556 new traffic cases and 10,313 hearings each during 1983.

Declining the first time since the implementation of the Uniform Docketing and Caseload Reporting System in 1977, civil new cases fell by three percent and totaled 605,988. Hearings were reported as 720,657, a four percent drop. The majority (65%) of the 814,026 civil transactions involved suits in debt. Unlawful detainers and garnishments numbered 115,880 and 93,926, respectively. The largest civil caseload was recorded in the Thirteenth District where 149,363 new cases and 157,962 hearings were reported.

The state average of new civil cases per judge fell to 6,075 and hearings per judge fell to 7,255.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts

In 1983, the state's juvenile and domestic relations district courts reported that their caseloads included 210,065 new cases, 398,879 hearings, 410,886 transactions and 185,174 dispositions. Generally, this caseload was comparable with the previous year's figures.

The largest J&DR caseload was reported in the Thirteenth District (19,660 new cases) and the Nineteenth ranked second with 19,059 cases. Higher juvenile and domestic relations caseloads were reported in 11 of the 32 districts when compared to their 1982 workload. The Twenty-Eighth Judicial District reported the highest percentage increase (12%) followed by an 11 percent rise in the new caseload of the Thirtieth. Decreased caseload changes ranged from one-tenth of a percent in the Ninth Judicial District to a 13 percent drop in the Fifth's caseload.

Virginia's juvenile and domestic relations district court judges handled, on the average, 3,033 new cases and 5,760 hearings each during the past year. Urban judges averaged 3,479 and 6,594, respectively. Experiencing somewhat lower averages, rural judges handled 2,611 new cases and 4,970 hearings each during 1983.

Experiencing a three percent decline, juvenile new cases fell to 128,567 in 1983. These cases accounted for 61 percent of the total J&DR caseload. Accompanying the drop in new cases, hearings fell by four percent and numbered 233,137 for the year. On the average 1.81 hearings were held for each juvenile case. This ratio was slightly lower than in the previous year when the average was 1.84 hearings per case. Of the 242,659 juvenile hearings scheduled on the court's dockets, 109,549 (45%) were criminal in nature, 68,534 (28%) involved custody related matters, 52,410 (22%) dealt with traffic infractions and the remaining transactions, 12,166, were for status offenses. Criminal and traffic transactions remained constant with the previous year's level. Custody transactions increased by 5,800 or nine percent when compared with the number reported in 1982.

 Implementation of the Uniform Docketing and Caseload Reporting System

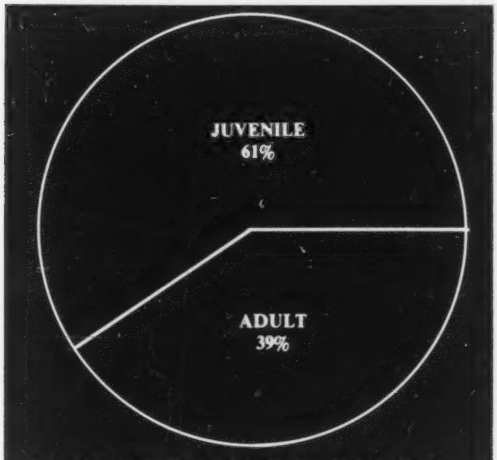
The adult caseload was composed of 81,498 new cases, 165,742 hearings, 168,227 transactions and 68,269 dispositions. All categories recorded growth during 1983; most interestingly, dispositions grew by six percent while new cases increased by five percent. The ratio of hearings to adult new cases was 2.03, down slightly from 1982's ratio of 2.07. The distribution of adult transactions has shifted from an even split in 1980 to a distribution weighted more heavily with nonsupport hearings (54%) than criminal hearings (46%).



1983 NEW CASE DISTRIBUTION

Juvenile and domestic relations district courts reported that on the average, 72,087 support cases are handled monthly. This figure was 11 percent (7,402 cases) higher than in the previous year and nearly 40 percent (20,053 cases) greater than in 1980. The range of monthly active support cases was 388 in District 2A to 4,829 in the Thirteenth Judicial District.

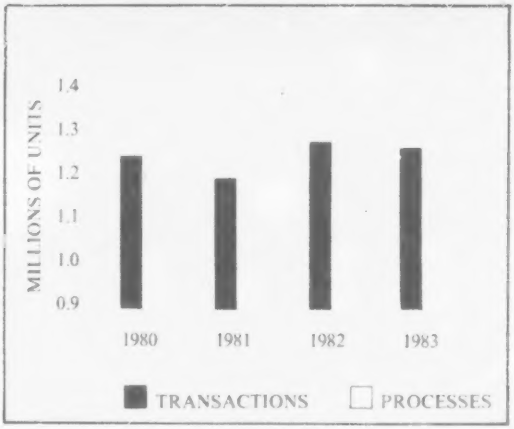
THE MAGISTRATE SYSTEM

During 1983, 32 Chief Magistrates and 418 magistrates were authorized to serve in the Virginia Magistrate System. Magistrates are appointed for a four-year term by the Chief Circuit Court Judge, however they must pass a certification examination at the Supreme Court within the first 6 months of the term. If a magistrate fails the certification examination, his/her appointment is terminated at the end of the 6 months.

A principal function of the magistrate is to provide an independent, unbiased review of complaints brought to the office by police officers, sheriffs, deputies, and citizens. Magistrate duties include issuing various types of processes such as arrest warrants, summonses, search warrants, subpoenas, and civil warrants. One of the chief duties of the magistrate is conducting bond hearings to set bail in instances in which an individual is charged with a criminal offense. A magistrate may also accept prepayments for traffic infractions and minor misdemeanors.

Each judicial district is served by a chief magistrate and a number of magistrates. The large urban areas generally utilize full-time magistrates who work on a shift basis to maintain an office twenty-four hours a day. In contrast, the majority of rural magistrates work on an availability basis and are contacted as needed. Some magistrates work on a fixed schedule during the day and are "on call" in the evenings.

MAGISTRATE SYSTEM TRANSACTIONS AND PROCESSES 1980—1983



During calendar year 1983, the Comonwealth's magistrates reported being available or "on call" 1,407,153 hours, of which 573,684 hours were spent in providing actual services to the public. Demand for magistrate services is best represented by the number of transactions, requests for processes, along with the number of incoming telephone calls and in-person inquiries. Last year, a total of 1,273,831 requests for processes, 721,469 telephone calls and 276,352 inquiries were recorded by magistrates statewide. Thus, during 1983 the state's 450 magistrates responded to nearly 2.3 million requests for information or service. This demand was three percent greater than in 1982.

In response to requests, magistrates issued 1,056,457 processes (including prepayments). Processes were issued at a rate of eight for every ten requests, similar to the 1982 rate, although the total number of processes was a thousand less than the number issued in that year. The range of total processes issued in 1983 was a high of 95,921 in the Fourth Judicial District to a low of 3,566 in District 2A. Two-thirds of the districts reported issuing fewer processes in 1983 than in 1982. The range of decline was a 0.2 percent drop in the Fifth District to a 44.5 percent decrease noted in the Seventh. The latter drop is partially due to the fact that civil warrants are no longer processed by the magistrates in that district. Compared with their annualized 1982 workload, the Eighteenth District reported the greatest percentage increase in the number of processes issued, 32.8 percent. The ten additional districts noting increases were at a level of less than five percent.

The 416,943 requests for arrest warrants resulted in the issuance of 335,457 warrants and 40,025 summonses. This activity represented a total increase of slightly more than 10,000 when compared with the number of warrants and summonses issued in 1982. Of the arrest warrants issued, 48,920 or 15 percent were felony warrants and 286,537 (85%) misdemeanor. This distribution varied somewhat from the 14/86 percent split noted in the previous year.

A total of 364,004 bond transactions were reported by the State's magistrates. Of this number 210,456 were processed. The issuance distribution of 13 percent felony and 87 percent misdemeanor has remained relatively constant during the past several years. Unsecured bonds were issued at a rate of 1.7 to every one secured bond. Bonds composed 20 percent of the total processes issued in 1983. When combined with arrest warrants and summonses, these processes accounted for 56 of the total process activity for last year. Prepayment of traffic fines and costs and Class IV misdemeanors rose from the previous year and totaled 32,817.

A total of 3,151 search warrants and 92,710 civil processes were also issued by the magistrates. In 1983, commitals and release orders again made up a significant percentage of the workload (28%) and numbered 162,308 and 134,487, respectively. During the past year, magistrates processed nearly 41,000 subpoenas and 4,100 mental detention orders.

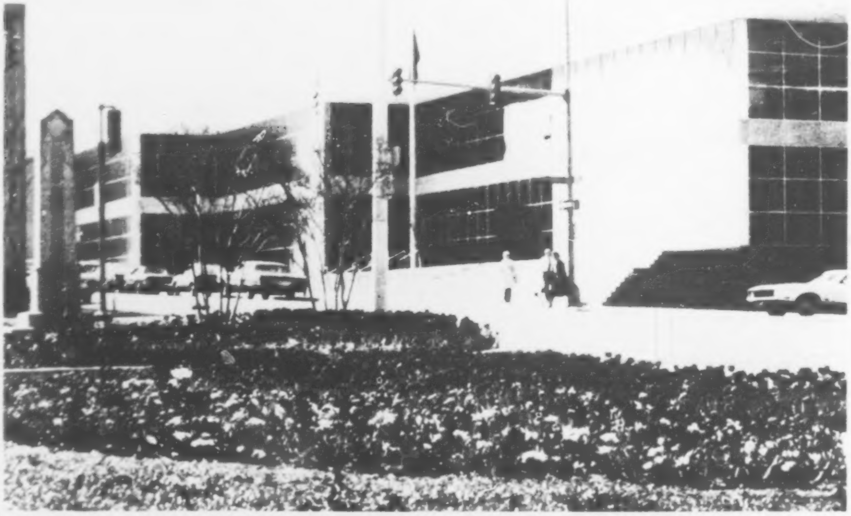
Caseload Summaries By Circuit And District



FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Chesapeake comprises the First Judicial Circuit. The 1980 census lists the population of the area at 114,486 of which 36,559 were juveniles under the age of eighteen. The total population of the circuit grew by 27 percent between 1970 and 1980.

The circuit was authorized two judgeships during 1983. They were filled by William L. Forbes and William H. Hodges. Additionally, the circuit regularly received assistance from the judges of the Fifth Circuit. Two general district and two juvenile and domestic relations district court judges were also authorized for the area. Serving the general district court were Charles B. Cross, Jr. and Russell I. Townsend, Jr. Judges F. P. Grissom and James A. Leftwich heard juvenile and domestic relations cases. Judge Leftwich also provided assistance to the Fifth District throughout the year. The four judges of the district used an average of 15.3 substitute and recalled retired judge days each, below the statewide average of 22.6 assistance days per district court judge.

The First Circuit reported that 2,929 cases were commenced in 1983, 147 fewer than in the previous year. This decrease was the result of 57 fewer civil filings and 90 less criminal cases. The caseload composition of the circuit was 23 percent law, 34 percent equity, 28 percent felony and 15 percent misdemeanor which was comparable to the statewide distribution. By the close of the year, 2,906 cases reached disposition in the circuit court. Four percent or 120 of these cases were concluded by a jury trial. Of the 1,624 concluded civil cases, 81 percent reached termination within twelve months of filing while 91 percent of the 1,282 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months.

The Chesapeake General District Court's caseload grew in 1983 by 7 percent, reaching 39,996 new cases for the year. Hearings rose by an identical percentage to total 57,595. The increase in commenced cases was the result of a 29 percent rise in traffic; both civil and criminal cases decreased by 17 and 5 percent, respectively. Caseload composition for the court was 19 percent criminal, 56 percent traffic, and 25 percent civil. Statewide this distribution was 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

In the juvenile and domestic relations court, a total of 5,284 new cases were recorded, a 4 percent increase from 1982. As occurred statewide, there was a small decrease in juvenile cases, less than 1 percent, and a substantial increase, 12 percent, in adult cases. By categories, juvenile cases totaled 3,242 accounting for 61 percent of the caseload and adult cases reached 2,042, representing 39 percent of the workload. This was identical to the caseload distribution statewide.

The First District was authorized nine magistrates who reported working 15,692 hours during 1983. Telephone calls and in-person inquiries numbered 16,895 and 3,616 during the year. The magistrates also received 30,824 requests for processes. Of these requests, 83 percent (25,633) resulted in a process being issued. Both transactions and processes declined in 1983 by six percent and eight percent, respectively. Arrest warrants and bonds accounted for the majority (54%) of the processes issued by the district's magistrates. Of the 8,706 arrest warrants requested, 89 percent or 7,737 were issued. Bonds were issued at a rate of six for every ten requested. Of the total bonds issued (6,145), 2,417 were non-secured bonds and 92 percent of these were for misdemeanor charges. During the year, the magistrates also issued 8,634 civil warrants, 2,367 commitals and releases, 445 subpoenas, 100 search warrants and 26 temporary mental detention orders. In addition, 179 prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors were processed.

SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Second Judicial Circuit serves the Eastern Shore counties of Accomack and Northampton, as well as the city of Virginia Beach. During the last decade, the population of the circuit increased by 43 percent and reached 308,092 of which 30 percent were juveniles. The 1980 census noted that Virginia Beach's population grew by 52 percent while the number of residents on the Eastern Shore increased by six percent.

The circuit was authorized seven judgeships in 1983. They were held by Bernard G. Barrow, N. Wescott Jacob, Henry L. Lam, Austin E. Owen, Philip L. Russo, George W. Vakos and Kenneth N. Whitehurst. Judge Vakos retired on February 1, 1984 and H. Calvin Spain was elected by the 1984 General Assembly to fill the vacancy. Serving in the general district court of Virginia Beach were John B. Preston, H. Calvin Spain, R. Stanley Hudgins, and Edward W. Hanson, Jr. Alan E. Rosenblatt was elected to fill Judge Spain's vacancy effective March 15, 1984. Frederick P. Aucamp, John K. Moore and J. Davis Reed were authorized as J&DR judges during 1983. The judges of the Second Judicial District used 120 substitute and recalled retired judge days during FY 83. Judge Wescott B. Northam served the district courts on the Eastern Shore, Judicial District Two-A.

The commenced caseload of the circuit experienced a slight decline in 1983 and numbered 9,151 cases. The civil caseload of 5,480 was third highest throughout the state while the circuit's criminal caseload ranked fourth. The caseload composition of 23 percent law, 37 percent equity, 23 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor was weighted more heavily with civil cases than the statewide distribution of 21 percent law and 34 percent equity. Slightly more than 200 fewer cases were concluded in 1983 than in the previous year. Of the 8,825 concluded cases, 3 percent involved a jury trial. Approximately 53 percent of the 5,174 civil cases concluded last year, were on the courts' dockets longer than one year. The circuit also reported that 66 percent of the 3,651 concluded criminal cases reached disposition within five months of initiation.

The city of Virginia Beach is the only locality in the Second Judicial District. During 1983, the general district court recorded 100,918 new cases, an 8 percent increase from 1982. The court had the fourth highest caseload in the state. Hearings also rose by 3 percent to reach 114,189. As was true statewide, traffic cases grew (by 8,127) while civil and criminal cases declined significantly (by 645 and 445 cases, respectively). The caseload composition was 18 percent criminal, 61 percent traffic, and 21 percent civil—a distribution weighted more heavily in traffic and civil cases than the statewide caseload makeup of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

For the second consecutive year, the juvenile and domestic relations district court reported a slight decrease in cases for 1983. Nevertheless, the 14,084 cases filed placed the court with the third highest juvenile and domestic relations caseload in Virginia. Juvenile cases accounted for 66 percent of the total commenced cases and numbered 9,286. There were 4,798 adult cases reported, a decline of 215 from the previous year.

The Second District was authorized 16 magistrate positions during the past calendar year. The magistrates reported 26,694 hours of activity during which they received 34,187 telephone calls, 14,296 inquiries from the public and 56,387 requests for processes. Of the requests, 86 percent or 48,734, resulted in the issuance of a process. The district ranked fifth, statewide, for the number of processes issued in 1983. Arrest warrant processes included 2,029 for felonies, 13,015 for misdemeanors and 3,809 for summonses. The magistrates received 15,401 requests for bonds, issuing 8,913 or 58 percent. Of those issued 6,567 were unsecured. In addition to processing 2,840 prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors, 6,650 subpoenas were issued. Committals and releases totaled 10,986 for the year.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT TWO-A

The counties of Accomack and Northampton make up District Two-A. The general district courts experienced an overall 7 percent increase in caseload. New cases in Northampton jumped 14 percent while Accomack recorded a more modest gain of 5 percent. Districtwide, only civil cases decreased; criminal and traffic rose by 7 and 18 percent, respectively. The caseload composition was 13 percent criminal, 54 percent traffic, and 33 percent civil. Statewide this distubution was 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

Both Eastern Shore counties reported declines in new cases filed in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts in 1983. This was the result of a 15 percent decrease in juvenile cases. Adult cases rose by 36 in Accomack. Interestingly, Northampton recorded an identical 173 adult cases for both 1982 and 1983. Caseload composition was 56 percent juvenile and 44 percent adult. This varied slightly from the statewide caseload distribution of 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult cases for the year.

The district was authorized four magistrates, including the chief magistrate, in 1983. Working a total of 3,168 hours, the magistrates received 4,189 requests for processes. Processes resulted for 85 percent (3,566) of the requests. Arrest warrants, which numbered 2,064, were issued at a rate of 9.5 for every ten requested. Bonds issued in 1983 totaled 683: 430 unsecured, 253 secured. Slightly more than 57 percent of the bond requests were granted. The magistrates of the district also issued 703 jail committals and releases, 12 search warrants, 10 temporary mental detention orders and 3 subpoenas. Prepayments received, included 174 for traffic infractions and 22 for Class IV misdemeanors.

THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Portsmouth is the single locality in the Third Judicial Circuit. The total 1980 population of Portsmouth, as determined by the Bureau of the Census, was 104,577, a six percent decline since 1970. The juvenile population was calculated at 30,024.

Three circuit judgeships were authorized in the Third and were filled by William H. Oast, Jr., Lester E. Schlitz and Dennis F. McMurran. During 1983, the general district court was served by Archie E. Elliott, Jr., Stanley L. Morris, Jr. and James A Cales, Jr. Judges Cecil W. Johnson and Von L. Piersall served the juvenile and domestic relations district court. The judges of the district used, on the average, 6.2 assistance days each during FY 83, the lowest average throughout the state.

Experiencing a five percent growth over 1982, the circuit's commenced caseload rose to 4,060 in 1983. The criminal caseload (2,464) was fourth highest throughout the state. The circuit's caseload distribution was 21 percent law, 19 percent equity, 31 percent felony and 29 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was weighted more heavily with criminal cases than the statewide composition of 45 percent. The circuit reported that 436 fewer cases were concluded last year than in the previous year. Of those cases concluded (3,853), nine percent involved a jury trial. Overall, the number of cases concluded by a jury trial increased by 66 percent when compared with 1982's figures. Approximately 60 percent of the 1,612 concluded civil cases had been on the court's docket for more than one year. Of the 2,241 concluded criminal cases 2,118 or 95 percent were terminated within five months of filing.

The general district court's caseload in 1983 reached 54,558 new cases, an increase of 5 percent from 1982. The overall hearings per case ratio was 1.25. Of the new cases, 19 percent were criminal, 44 percent were traffic, and 37 percent were civil in nature. Statewide, the distribution was 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. The court's civil caseload was eighth highest among all district.

The 1983 juvenile and domestic relations court caseload was 4,071 new cases and 10,934 hearings. Portsmouth was one of the few areas in the state with a significant increase in juvenile cases. They rose to 2,376 or 14 percent higher than in the previous year. Also interesting, the adult caseload declined 8 percent and was recorded at 1,695. Most districts reported growth in adult cases. Juvenile cases represented 58 percent of the entire caseload with adult cases accounting for 42 percent. Statewide the figures were 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult cases.

Five magistrate positions were authorized for the Third District during the past year. These magistrates reported 10,257 hours of activity during which they handled 19,174 telephone calls, 5,082 in-person inquiries and received 26,522 requests for processes. They issued processes for 82 percent of the requests. The 21,818 processes reflected a modest two percent increase over the number issued in 1982. Arrest warrants and bonds accounted for 41 percent and 24 percent, respectively, of the total number of processes issued in 1983. Nearly 90 percent of the arrest warrants requested resulted in the issuance of a summons or warrant. Bonds were issued at a rate of 6.1 for every 10 requested. Of the 5,303 bonds issued in 1983, 3,050 were non-secured, of which 97 percent were for misdemeanors. Nearly 6,000 jail committals and releases were handled by the district's magistrates. Additionally, they issued 1,146 subpoenas, 394 temporary mental detention orders and 102 search warrants.

FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Fourth Judicial Circuit serves the city of Norfolk. The 1980 population of the area was listed at 266,979 by the Bureau of the Census. Compared to the number of residents recorded in 1970, the city has experienced a 13 percent decline in the number of residents. The population of this area also included 65,613 juveniles.

Nine circuit judgeships were authorized in 1983. The judges serving were Joseph E. Baker, William Moultrie Guerry, Morris B. Gutterman, Thomas R. McNamara, Edward L. Ryan, Jr., Robert W. Steward, Alfred W. Whitehurst, John W. Winston and John E. Clarkson. Judge Ryan retired on January 1, 1984 and Jerome James was elected by the General Assembly to fill his vacancy. The Fourth was also authorized five general district and three juvenile and domestic relations judges. The general district court was served by Joseph A. Jordan, Jr., Lawrence C. Lawless, Fred E. Martin, Jr., Leonard B. Sachs, William L. Shapero and Reid M. Spencer. Judge Shapero retired on July 1, 1983. In the juvenile court, Lester V. Moore, Jr., John C. Morrison, Jr., James H. Flippen, Jr. and Edwin A. Henry, who retired on September 1, 1983, served as authorized judges. During FY 83, the district court judges averaged 16.8 assistance days each, below the statewide average of 22.6 days per judge.

Growing by 600 cases, the commenced caseload of the Fourth reached 14,946 by the close of 1983. The circuit's criminal caseload was the highest throughout the 31 circuits while the number of civil cases ranked second. This caseload was distributed 18 percent law, 30 percent equity, 25 percent felony and 27 percent misdemeanor and was weighted more heavily with misdemeanor cases than the statewide composition of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. Of the 11,813 cases that were concluded during the year 300, or three percent, involved a jury trial. The circuit reported that 45 percent of 4,685 concluded civil cases reached disposition within 12 months of filing. On the criminal side, 85 percent of the concluded cases were terminated within five months of initiation.

Ranking second highest in the state, the caseload in Norfolk's general district court rose to 176,624. This represents a 12 percent jump from 1982. The court sits in three divisions. New cases in the criminal division reached 40,200 which was highest among the districts. The traffic division's caseload was 73,125, a 20 percent growth over 1982. It ranked third in the state. Finally, civil cases numbered 63,299 placing their caseload second highest of all general district courts in Virginia. Caseload distribution in Norfolk was 23 percent criminal, 41 percent traffic and 36 percent civil.

The three juvenile court judges heard a total of 10,536 new cases in 1983, or 5 percent more than in the previous year. This ranked Norfolk as fourth highest in the state among J&DR courts for total new cases. Juvenile cases rose for the first time in three years. There were 343 additional adult cases reported than in 1982. The juvenile and adult caseloads in the court were both fourth highest in the state.

Thirteen magistrate positions were authorized in the Fourth District during the past year. The magistrates reported 19,696 hours of activity during which they reviewed 118,412 requests for processes. Although the number of processes issued declined by nine percent and totaled 95,921 for the year, the district ranked first among the state's 32 districts in regards to total processes issued in 1983. Civil warrants (35,008) and arrest warrants (31,038) accounted for 69 percent of the processes issued in 1983. Of the 33,209 arrest warrants requested 93 percent were issued. Bonds were issued at a rate of 5.2 for every ten requested. A total of 12,717 bonds were processed during the year, 57 percent of which were secured. Other 1983 process activity included issuing 16,182 jail committals and releases, 378 temporary mental detention orders, 284 search warrants and 46 subpoenas.

FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Fifth Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Isle of Wight and Southampton, as well as the cities of Franklin and Suffolk. The population of the circuit grew by seven percent from 1970 to 1980 and was listed at 95,263. The Bureau of the Census also noted that the population included 27,750 individuals under the age of eighteen. All localities within the circuit experienced a population growth from the 1970 census, with the most significant change occurring in Suffolk, a 383 percent rise in the number of residents.

This circuit was authorized three judges during 1983 and was served by E. Everett Bagnell, James C. Godwin and Benjamin A. Williams, Jr. These judges were also designated to provide assistance to the First Judicial Circuit during the year. The Fifth Judicial District was served by two general district court judges, Robert B. Edwards and William Wellington Jones. William R. Moore, Jr., with assistance from Judge Leftwich from the First District, sat in the J&DR courts. The district's judges used, on the average, 45.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days each during FY 83, twice the statewide measure of 22.6 assistance days per district court judge.

Reported as a slight decline in 1983, the commenced caseload of the Fifth Judicial Circuit totaled 3,131 cases. Within the circuit all localities reported fewer cases than were commenced in 1982. Suffolk's caseload of 2,111 continued to represent the majority (67%) of the circuit's cases. The Fifth's caseload was distributed 19 percent law, 31 percent equity, 32 percent felony and 18 percent misdemeanor. This composition was weighted more heavily with criminal cases than the statewide distribution of 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. The courts of the circuit reported that 2,698 cases were concluded during 1983, a three percent rise over 1982's 2,615. Of the cases concluded five percent involved a jury trial. Nearly one-half of the 1,244 civil cases concluded during the year, reached disposition within 12 months of filing and three-fourths of the 1,454 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months.

The Fifth's general district court caseload in 1983 was reported at 32,217 new cases, 45,273 hearings and 34,469 dispositions. Districtwide, both criminal and civil cases declined by 497 and 1,529 cases, respectively. Traffic cases grew 15 percent. The city of Franklin was the only locality in which increases were noted in all case types. Most significant was the city's 52 percent jump in traffic cases in 1983. This contributed heavily to that court's 26 percent increase in caseload overall. Both Isle of Wight and Southampton Counties reported five percent caseload growths during the year.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district courts, 4232 new cases, 8,899 hearings and 3,771 despositions were reported for the year. This caseload reflected declines of 13 percent, 15 percent and 9 percent respectively, when compared with the previous years figures. The caseload composition was evenly divided between juvenile and adult cases.

Nine magistrate positions were authorized in the Fifth District during the past year. The magistrates reported 14,130 hours of activity during which they received 14,128 telephone calls, 4,923 in-person inquiries and handled 29,434 requests for processes. Processes issued, comparable to the previous year's figure, totaled 23,086 for 1983. Nearly half of the processes issued last year fell into the categories of arrest warrants (6,232) and civil warrants (4,603). Bonds were issued at a rate of 5.5 for every ten requested. Of the 3,878 issued, 62 percent were secured. The district's proportion of secured bonds varied significantly from the statewide percentage of 36 percent secured. During the year the magistrates also processed 5,054 jail committals and releases, 213 temporary mental detention orders, 79 search warrants and 49 subpoenas. Nearly 2,800 prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors were received by the district's magistrates.

SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Sixth Circuit is comprised of the counties of Brunswick, Greensville, Prince George, Surry and Sussex and the cities of Emporia and Hopewell. The Bureau of the Census lists the 1980 population of the area as 97,425, a one percent increase over the 1970 census figure of 96,264. Included in the recent census listing were 29,085 juveniles.

Serving the Sixth Judicial Circuit during 1983 were Robert G. O'Hara, Jr. and William Park Lemmond, Jr. C. C. Connelly and James A. Luke were authorized as general district court judges while Samuel E. Campbell and C. A. Perkinson served the J&DR courts. The four judges of the district used a total of 108.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days during FY 83, for an average of 27.1 days per judge.

The Sixth Circuit reported that 2,218 cases were commenced during 1983. This one percent growth was the result of larger caseloads in Brunswick (19%), Surry (15%) and Greensville (14%). Compared with 1982 levels, decreases were reported by Sussex (-14%), Hopewell (-7%) and Prince George (-1%). The circuit's caseload composition was 18 percent law, 39 percent equity, 32 percent felony and 11 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was weighted more heavily with equity and felony cases than the statewide composition of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. By the close of 1983, 1,994 cases had been concluded by the courts of this circuit, 104 more than in the previous year. The number of cases concluded by a jury trial rose from 72 in 1982 to 102 in 1983. Slightly more than half of the 1,032 concluded civil cases reached disposition within 12 months while 82 percent of the 962 criminal cases were concluded within five months of initiation.

An overall caseload rise of 6,367 cases or 11 percent was witnessed in the general district court in 1983. This occurred despite decreasing civil and criminal new cases commenced. The district's traffic caseload of 48,879 was the seventh highest recorded in the state and the court's total commenced cases was fourteenth highest. Localities reporting increases in all three case types were Brunswick and Greensville Counties. In contrast, the courts in Surry and Sussex Counties and the city of Hopewell noted declines in each case type resulting in total caseload drops of 12 percent, 15 percent and 13 percent, respectively. Interestingly, the Prince George general district court experienced a 62 percent growth in traffic cases while criminal and civil cases fell by 32 and 34 percent, respectively.

There were 3,322 new cases commenced in the juvenile and domestic relations courts in 1983, a drop of 78 from the previous year. Districtwide only adult cases increased. Composition of the caseload was 57 percent juvenile and 43 percent adult. This varied slightly from the statewide distribution of 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult. Within the district, the Sussex J&DR court had a six percent rise in new cases, due primarily to a 25 percent jump in adult cases.

The district was served by 19 magistrates in 1983 who reported working a total of 26,165 hours. They responded to 11,504 telephone calls and 6,688 inquiries from the public. Both transactions and processes issued declined significantly from those reported in 1982. Falling by 21 percent, transactions numbered 28,890 for the year. For those requests, 21,934 processes were issued, 31 percent fewer than the number issued in the previous year. A majority, 59 percent, of the processes were for arrest warrants and bonds. Of the 8,980 requests for arrest warrants, 7,520 or 84 percent were granted. Bonds were issued at a rate of seven for every ten requested. Of the total bonds issued (5,399), 58 percent were unsecured and 94 percent of those were for misdemeanor charges. The magistrates of the district also processed nearly 5,000 committals and releases, 1,696 subpoenas, 116 civil warrants, 67 search warrants and 36 temporary mental detention orders throughout the last calendar year.

SEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Newport News is the single locality in the Seventh Judicial Circuit. From 1970 to 1980, the population of the circuit increased by five percent and totaled 144,903 according to the most recent U. S. Census. Included in the population figure were 41,223 individuals under the age of eighteen.

During 1983, Fred W. Bateman, Douglas M. Smith and J. Warren Stephen served as circuit court judges in the Seventh. The district court judgeships were filled by Robert W. Curran, James H. Harvell and Randolph T. West in the general district court and F. Thompson Wheeler II and Robert B. Yacobi in the juvenile and domestic relations court. The five judges of the district used, on the average, 24 substitute and recalled retired judge days each in FY 83. This average was slightly above the statewide measure of 22.6 assistance days per district court judge.

Decreasing by 13 percent, the commenced caseload of the Seventh Judicial Circuit totaled 4,111 for 1983. Declines were noted in both the areas of civil (-140 cases) and criminal (-472 cases) when compared to the 1982 levels. The 1983 caseload composition was 17 percent law, 38 percent equity, 27 percent felony and 18 percent misdemeanor. This composition showed a higher proportion of equity and misdemeanor cases than the statewide percentages of 34 percent and 16 percent, respectively. There were 4,361 cases concluded throughout 1983, a decrease of 354 from 1982. Of this number 153, or four percent involved a jury trial. The age of concluded cases indicated that 49 percent or 1,162 of the 2,379 civil terminations met disposition within one year of filing. For the 1,982 criminal terminations, 1,688 (85%) were concluded within five months of initiation.

For the third consecutive year the caseload in the general district court decreased. A total of 63,296 new cases were commenced, 1,921 fewer than in 1982. This was attributable primarily to a 10 percent decrease in criminal cases. Only civil cases increased. Nevertheless, the criminal caseload was the ninth highest in the state and civil cases ranked fifth highest. The distribution of new cases was 19 percent criminal, 39 percent traffic, and 42 percent civil. This contrasts to the statewide composition of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil cases.

A total of 4,430 new cases were commenced and 10,840 hearings were held in the Newport News juvenile and domestic relations district court. This was 277 cases or 6 percent fewer cases than in 1982. As was true statewide, there was a decline in juvenile cases and a slight increase in adult cases. Juvenile cases accounted for 53 percent of the caseload and fell by 358 cases or 13 percent from the previous year. Representing the remaining 47 percent of the workload, adult cases rose by 4 percent. The J&DR caseload distribution statewide was 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult.

Newport News was authorized six magistrates throughout 1983. They reported a total of 10,789 hours of duty during which they received 48,977 requests for processes. Of these requests, 68 percent resulted in the issuance of a process. Transactions and processes declined significantly from the number reported in 1982. These decreases were partially due to the fact that the civil warrants are no longer handled by the Newport News magistrates. Nearly half of the processes issued in 1983 were for arrest warrants. Of the 16,274 arrest warrants issued, 1,984 were for felony charges; 10,408 were for misdemeanors and 3,882 were summonses. Bonds were issued at a rate of 3.5 for every 10 requested. Out of the 4,666 bonds issued, 63 percent or 2,920 were unsecured and of these 88 percent were for misdemeanor charges. Committal and release orders numbered 11,932 for the year. Additionally the magistrates issued 330 search warrants, 100 temporary mental detention orders and 1 subpoena. Only 13 prepayments were processed by the magistrate's office in 1983.

EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Eighth Judicial Circuit serves the city of Hampton. According to the Bureau of the Census, the 1980 population of the area was 122,617 of which 29 percent (35,639) were classified as juvenile residents. The circuit's total population reflected a modest two percent gain over the 1970 listing of 120,779.

The circuit judgeships were filled by Edgar A. Massenburg, Nelson T. Overton and John D. Gray. The general district courts were served by Henry D. Kashouty and Thomas H. Wilson II. Judges of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court were Paul Crider, Jr. and Nelson T. Durden. The district court judges reported using an average of 31.1 substitute judge days each during FY 83, above the statewide per judge figure of 22.6 days.

During 1983, 3,039 cases were commenced in the Eighth Circuit. This two percent rise was the result of 191 additional criminal cases and 131 fewer civil filings. The composition of the commenced caseload was 20 percent law, 36 percent equity, 23 percent felony and 21 percent misdemeanor. This breakout was weighted more heavily with equity and misdemeanor cases than the statewide composition of 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. The circuit reported that 3,123 cases were concluded during the year, five percent more than in 1982. Jury trials were utilized in one percent of the concluded cases. Of the 1,677 civil cases concluded, 45 percent or 749 reached disposition within twelve months of filing. For the 1,446 criminal cases concluded, 87 percent (1,263) were terminated within five months of filing.

The city's general district court reported a total of 50,283 commenced cases and 78,267 hearings during 1983. A 15 percent decline in civil cases resulted in an overall 2 percent decrease in caseload. More than 2,000 additional traffic cases were commenced in 1983 than in the previous year. Criminal cases also increased by 240 cases. The caseload distribution was 20 percent criminal, 43 percent traffic, and 37 percent civil. This contrasts to the statewide composition of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic, and 29 percent civil.

Caseload decreases also were experienced in the juvenile and domestic relations court. New cases were 5,155 with an accompanying 13,807 hearings. This represented a slight drop of 125 cases or 2 percent. This was attributable to small declines in both juvenile and adult cases. Sixty-eight percent of the new caseload was composed of juvenile cases. This was slightly above the statewide average of 61 percent.

Six magistrates were authorized for the Eighth District during 1983. The magistrates reported 10,514 hours of activity during which they received nearly 11,000 telephone calls, 3,537 inquiries from the public and 27,257 requests for processes. Of the total transactions, 21,778 resulted in the issuance of a process. Approximately 96 percent of the processes issued fell into the category of arrest warrants and bonds. Of the 13,565 requests for arrest warrants, 99 percent were issued. Bonds were issued at a rate of six per every ten requested. Unsecured bonds represented 66 percent of the 7,411 bonds granted. Prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors numbered 121 for the year. Magistrates also issued 297 temporary mental detention orders and 176 search warrants throughout 1983.

NINTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Ninth Judicial Circuit includes the counties of Charles City, Gloucester, James City, King and Queen, King William, Mathews, Middlesex, New Kent and York and the cities of Poquoson and Williamsburg. Listed at 143,418, the population of this circuit grew by 30 percent between 1970 and 1980. All localities experienced growth during this time frame, with the largest changes noted in New Kent (66%), Poquoson (60%), and Gloucester (43%). Of the total population, 39,948 were residents under the age of eighteen.

The circuit courts were served by Judges Russell M. Carneal, John E. Dehardit and G. Duane Holloway. The four judgeships authorized for the Ninth District were filled by William T. Bareford and J. R. Zepkin in the general district court and Herbert I. L. Feild and John G. Sowder in the juvenile and domestic relations district court. The district judges used on the average, 37.6 assistance days each, above the statewide average of 22.6 days for fiscal year 1983.

The Ninth Circuit reported that 3,037 cases were commenced during 1983, an 11 percent decrease from 1982. This change was the result of 233 fewer criminal and 134 less civil filings. Decreases in total caseload were reported by all localities, save Gloucester and Mathews whose caseloads each increased by five percent. The composition of the circuit's 1983 caseload was 21 percent law, 39 percent equity, 23 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor. In comparison, the 1983 statewide distribution was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. Slightly more than two percent (75) of the 3,101 concluded cases involved a jury trial during the year. The age of concluded cases indicated that nearly half, 875, of the 1,792 civil cases reached disposition within 12 months of initiation. For the 1,309 criminal cases, 1,018 (78%) were concluded within five months of filing.

Reported in the general district court for 1983 were 37,928 new cases, 39,778 hearings, and 37,480 dispositions. Districtwide, both criminal and civil cases fell by two and twelve percent, respectively. The 1,531 new traffic cases represented a seven percent caseload rise from the previous year. Within the district, the most significant caseload increase was noted in Mathews County. Increases of 47 percent in criminal and 56 percent in traffic cases resulted in an overall caseload jump of 40 percent in that locality. The counties of Middlesex, New Kent, and King William also recorded growth in total new cases. Interestingly, in two of these areas there were significant drops in civil cases: New Kent (-49 percent) and Middlesex (-30 percent). The caseload composition was 20 percent criminal, 62 percent traffic, and 19 percent civil.

In the juvenile and domestic relations courts, there were 2,691 new juvenile and 1,749 new adult cases commenced. Districtwide, juvenile cases dropped by two percent while adult cases rose three percent. The locality experiencing the greatest increase in caseload (28 percent) was Mathews County. King and Queen County noted the most significant drop in new cases (32 percent). Hearings per case ratio was 2.70, above the rural average of 1.9.

Nineteen magistrates served the localities of the Ninth District in 1983. During their 14,586 hours of activity, they reported traveling 34,816 miles, receiving 11,112 telephone calls and 5,915 inquiries from the public. In all, they received 19,301 requests for processes, 900 fewer than in 1982. Eighty-five percent or 16,399 of these requests resulted in a process being issued. Nearly two-fifths of all processes were for arrest warrants. The 6,268 warrants included 1,064 for felonies, 4,448 for misdemeanors and 756 summonses. The number of bonds issued in 1983 was 2,827 of which 71 percent were unsecured. Secured bonds numbered 812 for the year. The magistrates of the district also issued 4,348 civil warrants, 79 search warrants, 16 subpoenas and 3 temporary mental detention orders.

TENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Tenth Judicial Circuit is comprised of eight counties: Appomattox, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Halifax, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, and Prince Edward; and the city of South Boston. The population of the circuit was listed as 139,585 by the Bureau of the Census in 1980. This figure represented a six percent increase over the number of residents identified in the 1970 census. The 1980 population included 39,685 juveniles.

Two circuit judgeships were authorized for the Tenth and were filled by John R. Snoody and Charles L. McCormick who filled the vacancy created by Judge Meredith C. Dortch's retirement on February 1, 1983. Presiding in the general district courts were William Hay, Jr., Robert B. Spencer, Jr. and Robert T. Vaughn. William L. Wellons and J. Taylor Williams served in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts. There were 108 substitute judge days used in fiscal year 1983, or 22 days per district court judge.

During 1983, 2,278 cases were initiated in the circuit's courts. This caseload represented a drop of five percent when compared with 1982's 2,386 commenced cases. Increased caseloads were reported by three courts: Prince Edward, a 22 percent rise (55 cases); Cumberland, also a 22 percent rise (19 cases), and a 2 percent jump in Lunenburg (4 cases). The 1983 composition of the circuit's caseload was 21 percent law, 36 percent equity, 32 percent felony and 11 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was weighted more heavily with equity and felony cases than the statewide breakout of 34 percent and 29 percent, respectively. Increasing by six percent, concluded cases numbered 2,445 for the year. The number of cases concluded by a jury trial remained constant with the previous year's figure of 59. Of the 1,469 concluded civil cases, 38 percent achieved disposition within one year of filing. On the criminal side, 84 percent of the 976 cases, were concluded within five months of filing.

In 1983, the general district courts had 49,274 new cases and 46,064 hearings, reflecting a small decrease over the caseload reported in 1982. Criminal new cases grew by 185 to total 7,329 for the year, a 3 percent increase. Traffic and civil cases numbered 33,399 and 8,546, respectively, both declining from figures reported last year. The new caseload was weighted 15 percent criminal, 68 percent traffic and 17 percent civil. Statewide the distribution was 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil cases.

The two judges of the juvenile and domestic relations district court handled 5,124 new cases in 1983. Both new cases and hearings fell by three percent. A decline of 206 juvenile cases was experienced along with a rise of 30 adult cases during the year. Caseload makeup was 60 percent juvenile and 40 percent adult. On the average, there were 1.8 hearings per case in the J&DR courts. This was comparable to the 1.9 hearings per case ratio recorded statewide.

The Tenth Judicial District was authorized nineteen magistrates during the last calendar year. During the 20,884 hours of activity, the magistrates reported driving 53,683 miles; receiving 15,297 telephone calls and 6,345 inquiries from the public and reviewing nearly 27,000 requests for processes. For these requests, 23,090 processes were issued. The majority of the magistrates' process activity dealt with arrest and civil warrants. The 7,927 arrest warrants included 1,360 for felonies, 6,495 for misdemeanors and 72 summonses. Bond transactions numbered 7,278 of which 4,633 were issued. Release on recognizance and promise to appear bonds totaled 2,290 for the year. Of the 2,343 secured bonds, 84 percent were for misdemeanor charges. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 9.8 for every 10 requested. The magistrates also processed 5,271 civil warrants, 471 subpoenas, 467 prepayments and 55 temporary mental detention orders during 1983.

ELEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Eleventh Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Amelia, Dinwiddie, Nottoway and Powhatan, as well as the city of Petersburg. The 1980 population was listed at 99,790 of which 28,276 were identified as juveniles. With the exception of Dinwiddie, all localities within the circuit noted population increases with the largest reported in Powhatan, 70 percent.

Judges Oliver A. Pollard, Jr. and Thomas V. Warren served the Eleventh Circuit. Four judgeships were authorized for the district courts. They were filled by James F. D'Alton and Richard E. Lewis, Jr. in the general district court and Ben L. Campbell and L. L. Mason, Jr. in the juvenile and domestic relations district court. An average of 18.9 substitute days were used by each district judge during the past fiscal year.

Declining by eight percent from the previous year, the 1983 commenced caseload for the circuit numbered 2,126. Decreases were noted both in the area of civil and criminal cases. Within the circuit, Powhatan was the only court to report a higher caseload in 1983 than in 1982, an increase of 40 cases. Lower caseloads were noted by Dinwiddie, -110 cases; Petersburg, -58 cases; Amelia, -45 cases and -9 cases in Nottoway. The composition of the circuit's 1983 caseload was 19 percent law, 34 percent equity, 36 percent felony and 11 percent misdemeanor. This case-type distribution was weighted more heavily with felony cases than the statewide proportion of 29 percent. In 1983, the number of concluded cases fell 15 percent to 1,893 of which seven percent involved a jury trial. The number of cases concluded by a jury trial rose from 114 in 1982 to 131 in 1983. The age of concluded cases indicates that of the 978 concluded civil cases 65 percent reached disposition within 12 months of filing. For the 915 criminal cases, 88 percent or 810, were concluded within five months of initiation.

New cases in the general district court numbered 35,019, a decrease of 2,458 cases or 7 percent. The drop in caseload was attributable to 1,213 fewer criminal cases (-15 %) and 3,126 less civil cases (-24.2 %). Traffic cases grew by twelve percent. The most significant increase by case type occurred in Amelia, where the traffic caseload grew 66 percent. Districtwide, the composition of cases was 20 percent criminal, 52 percent traffic and 28 percent civil. This was comparable to statewide caseload makeup of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

In the juvenile and domestic relations courts, the caseload declined by 11 percent. Both juvenile and adult cases dropped by 15 percent and 7 percent, respectively. Hearings also decreased. In Nottoway County alone the caseload fell 39 percent. Juvenile cases accounted for 56 percent of the district's new caseload, compared to the statewide average of 61 percent. Hearings per case ratio was 1.36, slightly below the rural measure of 1.9 recorded in 1983.

The Eleventh District was authorized 14 magistrates during the past year. These magistrates reported working 15,157 hours, handling 17,426 telephone calls and 7,255 in-person inquiries, and reviewing 22,424 requests for processes. Of these requests, 83 percent or 18,558 resulted in a process being issued. Transactions and processes declined by six and seven percent, respectively, when compared with the district's 1982 workload. Two-thirds of the processes issued in 1983 were for arrest warrants and bonds. Of the 8,732 requests for arrest warrants, 7,602 or 87 percent were issued: 1,375 for felonies, 5,547 for misdemeanors and 680 for summonses. The magistrates received 7,412 bond requests, issuing 4,602 or 6.2:10 requests. Of the 1,553 secured bonds, nearly three-fourths were for misdemeanor charges. Other 1983 process activity included issuing 4,548 jail committals and releases, 915 subpoenas, 433 civil warrants, 174 temporary mental detention orders and 74 search warrants.

TWELFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Chesterfield County and the city of Colonial Heights comprise the Twelfth Judicial Circuit. The circuit's 1980 population was listed as 157,881 by the Bureau of the Census and represented a 71 percent increase over 1970's listing. Included in 1980's population were 49,891 individuals under the age of eighteen.

The circuit's 1983 judgeships were filled by Frnest P. Gates, John F. Daffron, Jr., William N. Humphries, Jr. and D. W. Murphy who retired on July 1, 1983. Presiding in the general district courts were William R. Shelton, John H. Snead, and John E. Dodson who filled Judge Humphrie's vacancy. Judge Snead retired on March 1, 1984, and the General Assembly elected Robert D. Laney as his successor. Judges John H. Thomas and Marvin L. Garner served in the juvenile and domestic relations district court. A total of 160 substitute and recalled retired judge days were reported in the Twelfth during FY 83, or 32 days per judge.

The circuit reported that 3,461 cases were commenced in 1983, a decline of four percent from the previous year. Decreases were noted in the number of civil cases (-104) and criminal cases (-52). Within the circuit, Chesterfield's commenced caseload fell by three percent, 86 cases, while Colonial Heights reported 70 fewer cases for the year. The composition of the Twelfth's caseload was 15 percent law, 49 percent equity, 21 percent felony and 15 percent misdemeanor. This distribution contained a significantly higher percentage of equity cases, than the statewide breakout of 34 percent. The circuit reported that 269 more cases reached disposition in 1983 than in the previous year. Of the 3,547 concluded cases, 66 involved a jury trial. Concluded civil cases number 2,226, 49 percent of which reached disposition within 12 months of filing. Of the 1,321 criminal cases, 1,075 or 81 percent were concluded within five months of filing.

The three judges in the general district courts handled a total of 44,848 new cases, a 19 percent increase from 1982. All three categories rose during the year. There were 1,847 additional criminal cases, reflecting a 26 percent growth in 1983. This was attributable to a 34 percent increase in criminal cases noted in Chesterfield. The city of Colonial Heights, on the other hand, experienced a jump of 44 percent in traffic cases. The district's caseload makeup was 20 percent criminal, 59 percent traffic, and 21 percent civil.

A drop of less than one percent was reported in the juvenile and domestic relations cases. Of the 5,281 new cases brought to the juvenile and domestic relations courts, 66 percent were petitions involving juveniles and the remaining 34 percent (1,780) were adult cases. The latter increased by three percent during the year. The court was ranked seventh highest in the state in number of hearings (15,219) held in 1983. The hearings per case ration was 1.32 slightly below the statewide average of 1.9.

The district's 11 magistrates reported working slightly more than 14,000 hours in 1983. During this time they logged 26,855 telephone calls, 2,708 inquiries from the public, and 25,014 requests for processes. In response to the requests, the magistrates issued 20,511 processes, six percent fewer than in 1982. Requests for arrest warrants totaled 8,494 of which 93 percent resulted in the issuance of a process. These included 1,296 for felonies, 5,342 for misdemeanors and 1,238 summonses. The magistrates of the district processed 3,329 unsecured and 1,839 secured bonds. Of those secured, 65 percent involved felonies. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 9.9 for every 10 requested, somewhat higher than the statewide rate of 8.7:10. The magistrates also processed 7,205 jail committals and releases during the year.

THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Richmond alone comprises the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit. Based on the 1980 U. S. Census, Richmond's population declined 12 percent from 1970's level of 249,332 and was listed as 219,214. The Bureau of the Census also reported that this figure included 49,025 juveniles.

Presiding in the circuit courts were Marvin F. Cole, James M. Lumpkin, James E. Sheffield, William E. Spain, Thomas N. Nance, Willard I. Walker, James B. Wilkinson and Frank A. S. Wright. Judge Spain retired on January 1, 1984. Seven judges, including Jose R. Davila, Robert W. Duling, Melvin R. Hughes, Jr., W. Jerry Roberts, Henry J. Schrieberg, Edgar L. Turlington, Jr., and Robert L. Harris served the general district courts. Judge Roberts retired on January 1, 1984. The General Assembly elected Walter W. Stout III to fill the vacancy. Judgeships in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts were filled by Alton E. Bryant, Jr., Willard H. Douglas, Jr. and Arlin F. Ruby. On the average, each district court judge used 21.8 substitute or recalled retired judge days during the fiscal year.

The circuit reported that 8,676 cases were commenced during 1983, a two percent rise over the number initiated in 1982. The civil caseload of 5,026 ranked fourth highest throughout the 31 circuits while the criminal caseload (3,650) placed third. Division I, representing four-fifths of the circuit's cases, reported a six percent gain in their caseload. However, the number of commenced cases reported by Division II was 16 percent (249 cases) lower than in 1982. The composition of the circuit's caseload was 35 percent law, 24 percent equity, 34 percent felony and 7 percent misdemeanor. Increasing by nine percent, concluded cases were reported at 9,098 for the year. Cases concluded by a jury trial fell from 615 in 1982 to 435 in 1983. Slightly more than half (2,777) of the 5,371 concluded civil cases reached disposition within 12 months of filing. For the 3,727 concluded criminal cases, 95 percent ended within five months of initiation.

The 1983 new caseloads of both the general district and juvenile and domestic relations district courts were ranked highest in Virginia. An increase of 13 percent or 27,584 additional cases were filed in the general district courts during 1983. Traffic cases jumped 46 percent and totaled 78,063. Of the three case types, only criminal cases declined (-6%). The 149,363 civil cases brought in the Thirteenth also was highest among the 32 districts. Total hearings also ranked highest in the state.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, the three judges handled 19,660 new cases and held 22,163 hearings. Not only was the total caseload first in the state but adult new cases was highest as well. The number of juvenile cases ranked second statewide. The city experienced a 21 percent jump in adult cases and had a more modest rise of 2 percent in juvenile cases. The overall increase for the court was ten percent above that reported in 1982. Caseload composition was 52 percent juvenile cases (10,307) and 48 percent adult cases (9,353). Adult case percentage in Richmond was markedly higher than the statewide average of 39 percent.

Richmond was served by nine magistrates during the year. Working a total of 15,512 hours, they received 25,472 telephone calls and 15,173 inquiries from the public. Of the 68,459 requests for processes the magistrates issued 50,007. This process activity ranked fourth highest among the 32 districts of the Commonwealth. Nearly half of the district's processes fell into the category of jail committals and releases (24,339). Of the 19,485 requested arrest warrants, 18,450 were issued. This issuance percentage of 95 percent was five percent higher than the statewide figure. Unsecured bonds totaled 4,304 of which 91 percent were for misdemeanors. Secured bonds included 872 for felonies and 1,820 for misdemeanors. Search warrants were granted for 140 of the 151 requests.

FOURTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Henrico County is the only locality in the Fourteenth Judicial Circuit. According to the most recent census, 180,735 individuals resided in the circuit, of which 46,880 were identified as juveniles. The total population increased by 17 percent since the 1970 census.

During 1983, there were four authorized circuit judges. Serving were E. Ballard Baker, L. Paul Byrne, Buford M. Parsons, Jr., Robert M. Wallace and Edmund W. Hening, Jr. who retired on August 1, 1983. There were also three judges serving the general district court: Donald R. Howren, Joseph F. Spinella, and H. Ratcliffe Turner. Presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts were Augustus S. Hydrick and J. Mercer White, Jr. Together, the district judges used a total of 206 substitute judge days, or 41.2 days each. This is above the statewide average of 22.6 days per judge.

Increasing by eight percent, the commenced caseload of the circuit reached 4,673 by the close of 1983. The composition of this caseload was 14 percent law, 30 percent equity, 34 percent felony and 22 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was weighted more heavily with criminal cases compared to the statewide percentages of 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. With 2,646 criminal cases, the circuit had the sixth highest criminal caseload throughout the 31 circuits. The Fourteenth reported that 3,873 cases were concluded in 1983, a gain of 363 cases over 1982's level. Cases concluded by a jury increased dramatically from 51 in 1982 to 131 last year. Of the 1,713 civil cases concluded in 1983, 53 percent were disposed of within 12 months of filing. On the criminal side, 88 percent of the 2,160 cases were concluded within five months of initiation.

The general district court reported that their 1983 caseload included 63,276 new cases, 66,029 hearings and 64,597 dispositions. Respectively, these figures were four, two and three percent below those recorded in 1982. Traffic cases, representing 59 percent of the total caseload numbered 37,464 for the year. Civil new cases, 32 percent of the total, fell by ten percent and were listed at 19,994 for the year. Criminal cases, declining by seven percent, numbered 5,818. In comparison, the statewide caseload was distributed 55 percent traffic, 29 percent civil and 16 percent criminal.

For 1983, the juvenile and domestic relations district court reported that 5,942 new cases were docketed and 10,983 hearings were held. The nine percent drop in new cases was the result of 402 fewer juvenile and 182 fewer adult filings. The 1983 hearings per case ratio of 1.85 was comparable to the statewide average of 1.90 hearings per juvenile and domestic relations case. During the year, 6,845 cases reached disposition in this district.

Henrico County was authorized nine magistrate positions during the year. They reported working a combined total of 15,908 hours. During that time they received nearly 81,000 phone calls and 8,000 inquiries from the public. The number of requests for processes increased slightly (2%) and reached 44,173. For these requests, 38,672 processes were issued. This district issued the ninth largest number of processes throughout the state. Of the 8,679 requests for arrest warrants, 96 percent were issued. The 1983 rate of bond issuance was 5.7 for every ten requested. A majority (54%) of the bonds issued were secured bonds of which 78 percent or 2,824 were for misdemeanor charges. The magistrates also processed 9,606 jail committals and releases, 8,397 subpoenas, 5,493 prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors and 133 temporary mental detention orders. Search warrants were granted for each of the 72 requests.

FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Eleven localities comprise the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit: the counties of Caroline, Essex, Hanover, King George, Northumberland, Richmond, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Westmoreland and Lancaster; and the city of Fredericksburg. According to the 1980 census, the population of the circuit was 218,886, 38 percent higher than in 1970. Major population increases were noted throughout the circuit. The juvenile population was reported as 64,698, or 30 percent of the total residents.

Four judges were authorized for the Fifteenth Circuit. Serving the court were Dixon L. Foster, John A. Jamison, Richard H. C. Taylor and J. M. H. Willis, Jr. In the district courts there were six judgeships: Tristram T. Hyde IV, Robert R. Gwathmey III, J. Peyton Farmer and J. L. Savage, Jr. presided in the general district court and William J. Cox and Walther J. Fidler handled the juvenile and domestic relations district courts. Judges of the district used an average of 33.6 assistance days each. The Fifteenth district courts utilized retired judges to assist them in more instances than in any other district in the state.

The circuit reported that 4,435 cases were commenced in 1983, four percent fewer than in 1982. With 2,584 civil cases, the circuit reported the eighth largest number of commenced civil cases throughout the 31 circuits. Within the Fifteenth, five localities reported a higher caseload in 1983 than in 1982: Caroline, a five percent increase; Hanover, up by two percent; Richmond, a nine percent rise; Spotsylvania, an increase of 16 percent and Westmoreland, a 16 percent jump. The caseload composition of the circuit was 23 percent law, 36 percent equity, 26 percent felony and 15 percent misdemeanor. By the close of the year, 4,668 cases reached disposition, five percent fewer than in 1982. Correspondingly, the number of cases concluded by a jury trial fell from 233 in 1982 to 210 in 1983. Of the 2,877 civil cases concluded during the year, 52 percent reached a disposition within 12 months of filing. On the criminal side, 87 percent (1,550) of the 1,791 cases were concluded within five months of initiation.

The general district courts reported a combined 1983 caseload which included 93,160 new cases, 89,029 hearings and 94,364 dispositions. The district ranked fifth highest among the state's 32 districts for total cases initiated last year. The composition of the new caseload was 13 percent criminal, 59 percent traffic and 28 percent civil. This distribution was weighted with a higher percentage of traffic cases than the statewide traffic figure of 55 percent. Within the district, the most significant increase was noted in the caseload of Fredericksburg, a jump of 59 percent. Interestingly, the civil caseload of Fredericksburg nearly doubled between 1982 and 1983.

With 8,547 new cases, the district had the seventh largest juvenile and domestic relations caseload throughout the state in 1983. The nine percent increase in new cases was the result of 501 additional juvenile and 166 adult filings. During the year, nearly 13,000 hearings were held. The district's hearings per case ratio was 1.51 and fell below the state measure of 1.90. Increases exceeding ten percent were reported by Caroline (12%), Fredericksburg (15%) and Spotsylvania (25%).

The district was served by 25 magistrates last year. Statistics for 1983 indicated that 30,105 hours of activity were recorded during which the magistrates traveled over 115,000 miles, handled 24,000 telephone calls and in-person inquiries and received 36,505 requests for processes. Of these requests 83 percent resulted in a process being issued. Processes, numbering 30,192, reflected a seven percent decline from the total reported in 1982. For the 15,121 requests for arrest warrants, warrants were issued for 1,927 felonies and 11,348 misdemeanors. Summonses totaled 381 for the year. Bond requests numbered 12,119 with 7,402 being granted. Secured bonds totaled 2,514 with 517 identified as felony.

SIXTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Included in the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit are the counties of Albemarle, Culpeper, Fluvanna, Goochland, Greene, Louisa, Madison and Orange, and the city of Charlottesville. The Bureau of the Census reported a 1980 population of 194,069, a 26 percent increase over the past decade. Of the total residents, juveniles numbered 49,615.

Judges Vance M. Fry, David F. Berry, F. Ward Harkrader, Jr., Herbert A. Pickford III, and E. Gerald Tremblay served the circuit court. Judge Berry retired on March 1, 1984 and was replaced by Lloyd C. Sullenberger. Four judges were authorized for the general district courts including Basil C. Burke, Jr., Stephen H. Helvin, Franklin J. Jenkins and D. B. Marshall. Judge Burke retired on April 1, 1984 and the General Assembly elected William A. Talley, Jr. to fill the vacancy. Presiding in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts were Ralph P. Zehler, Jr. and William D. Reams, Jr. A total of 144.5 substitute judge days were used by the six district judges during FY 83. On the average each judge used 24.1 days; this compares closely to the statewide average.

Increasing by six percent, the commenced caseload of the circuit reached 5,054 cases by the close of 1983. Compared with the other circuits, the Sixteenth recorded the sixth largest number of civil cases and the eleventh highest criminal caseload throughout the state. An increase in the number of commenced cases was reported by Albemarle (227 cases), Culpeper (39 cases), Fluvanna (21 cases), Madison (66 cases) and Charlottesville (69 cases). The circuit's caseload composition, 22 percent law, 32 percent equity, 30 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor was comparable to the statewide distribution. The number of concluded cases fell slightly in 1983 and totaled 4,641. Likewise, the number of cases concluded by a jury fell from 251 in 1982 to 203 last year. The age of concluded civil cases indicated that 58 percent reach disposition within twelve months of filing. For the 2,153 criminal cases, 83 percent were concluded within five months of initiation.

The Sixteenth's general district courts reported the ninth largest new caseload throughout the Commonwealth in 1983. The 66,983 new cases represented a seven percent rise in traffic cases; a less than one percent growth in criminal cases and a 16 percent decline in the number of civil cases filed during the year. Within the district, Albemarle and Goochland each reported increases of nine percent while the caseloads of Greene and Louisa grew by eleven percent. The composition of the district's new cases was 23 percent criminal, 56 percent traffic and 21 percent civil.

There were 5,777 new cases reported by the juvenile and domestic relations district courts accompanied by 11,130 hearings. This represented a seven percent drop in new cases from 1982 and a four percent decline in the number of hearings. Juvenile and adult cases fell by six and eight percent, respectively. Albemarle and Orange were the only localities to report more new cases in 1983 than in the previous year. The district's hearings per case ratio, 1.93, was similar to the statewide measure of 1.90.

A total of 22 magistrates were authorized for the Sixteenth District. Slightly more than 19,000 hours of service were logged in 1983. In addition to the 38,280 requests for processes, the magistrates responded to over 27,000 individual inquiries. Processes were issued for 91 percent of the requests, higher than the statewide measure of 83 percent. Arrest warrants, which numbered 17,457, were issued at a rate of 9.4 per 10 requested. Bonds issued during the year totaled 7,221. Prepayments were processed for 441 traffic infractions and 476 Class IV misdemeanors. The magistrates of the district also issued 1,563 civil warrants, 123 subpoenas, 111 search warrants and 34 temporary mental detention orders in 1983.

SEVENTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Arlington is the single locality served by the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit. According to the Bureau of the Census, Arlington's population declined 12 percent between 1970 and 1980. The area's 1980 population of 152,599 included 24,969 residents under the age of eighteen. Juveniles accounted for only 16 percent of the total population, the lowest percentage throughout the circuits.

The circuit's four authorized judgeships were held by Paul D. Brown, Charles H. Duff, William L. Winston, and Thomas R. Monroe. Serving the general district court during the year were Francis Everett Thomas, Jr., Joseph C. Gwaltney and Eleanor S. Dobson. Judges Andrew B. Ferrari and Berton V. Kramer handled the juvenile and domestic relations cases for the district. During fiscal year 1983, the five judges of the district used, on the average, 21.4 substitute and recalled retired judge days each. This measure was slightly lower than the statewide average of 22.6 assistance days per district court judge.

Experiencing a decline of eight percent, the commenced caseload of the Seventeenth Circuit totaled 3,724 for 1983. While the number of civil cases fell slightly (5 cases), the criminal caseload declined by 326 when compared to the 1982 figure of 2,138. The composition of the 1983 caseload was 24 percent law, 29 percent equity, 42 percent felony and 5 percent misdemeanor. The proportion of felony cases was significantly higher than the statewide composition of 29 percent felony. By the close of 1983, 3,457 cases were concluded by the court, three percent more than in the previous year. Of these cases, five percent involved a jury trial. The age of concluded civil cases reflected that 57 percent of the 1,864 concluded cases had been on the court's docket longer than one year. Less than five months had elapsed from filing to disposition for 51 percent of the 1,593 concluded criminal cases.

Arlington's general district court reported 63,785 new cases in 1983, 8,633 more than in 1982. Hearings rose by nine percent to reach 78,806. Traffic new cases grew by 23 percent totaling 48,603; criminal cases increased by five percent reaching 7,138 and civil cases fell by nine percent and numbered 8,044 for the year. The district recorded the eighth largest traffic caseload throughout the state in 1983. Slightly more than 60,000 cases were disposed of by the court, 21 percent more than in the previous year.

The juvenile and domestic relations new caseload ranked third smallest among the 32 districts last year. New cases reported as 3,159 reflected a 15 percent decline in adult cases and a one percent drop in juvenile cases. The distribution of this new caseload (82 percent juvenile and 18 percent adult) varied significantly from the statewide composition of 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult. On the average, 3.48 hearings were held for each juvenile and domestic relations case. This measure was well above the statewide ratio of 1.90.

Arlington County was authorized eight magistrate positions during 1983. The magistrates reported working 9,488 hours during which they processed 34,570 requests for processes. Of these requests, 93 percent or 32,100 resulted in the issuance of a process. For the nearly 11,000 requests for arrest warrants, the magistrates issued 1,663 felony warrants, 7,085 misdemeanor warrants and 1,949 summonses. Secured bonds totaled 3,757 or 47 percent of all bonds issued. Unsecured bonds numbered 4,291, 90 percent of which were for misdemeanor charges. The magistrates processed nearly 1,400 prepayments for traffic infractions in addition to 11,799 jail committals and releases issued in 1983. Other activity included the issuance of 81 search warrants and 78 temporary mental detention orders.

EIGHTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The city of Alexandria is the only locality in the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit. Declining by seven percent during the last decade, the area's 1980 population was listed as 103,217 by the Bureau of the Census. The number of juvenile residents, reported at 18,938, accounted for only 18 percent of the total population.

During 1983, three judges served the circuit: Albert H. Grenadier, Donald Hall Kent and Wiley A. Wright. Judge Wright resigned on April 11, 1984, and Donald M. Haddock was appointed to fill the vacancy. Three district court judges were also authorized for the Eighteenth. Serving the general district court were Robert T. S. Colby and D. F. O'Flaherty. The juvenile and domestic relations cases were handled by Joseph L. Peters, Jr. The judges of the district used an average of 21.8 assistance days each during the last fiscal year. This mean was slightly below the statewide average of 22.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days per district court judge.

The circuit reported that 3,644 cases were initiated in 1983, a slight decline of three percent from the 3,762 reported in 1982. Decreases were noted both in the area of civil (-52 cases) and criminal (-66 cases). The total commenced caseload reflected a composition of 20 percent law, 31 percent equity, 31 percent felony and 18 percent misdemeanor. This case breakout was weighted more heavily with criminal cases than the statewide proportions of 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. The circuit concluded 160 more cases in 1983 than it did during 1982. Of the 3,736 cases concluded six percent involved a jury trial. The number of cases concluded by a jury trial rose from 179 in 1982 to 218 last year, a rise of nearly 22 percent. The age of concluded cases indicated that 46 percent of the civil cases reported (1,651) were concluded within twelve months of filing. For the 2,085 concluded criminal cases 1,764 or 85 percent, reached final disposition within five months of initiation.

The general district court serving Alexandria reported 37,073 new cases and 50,782 hearings in 1983. New cases and hearings declined by seven percent and four percent respectively, from the figures reported in 1982. Decreases were reported for all case types: criminal (-15%), traffic (-4%) and civil (-13%). The caseload composition was 10 percent criminal, 65 percent traffic and 25 percent civil, compared to state averages of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. The district's hearings per case ratio of 1.37 was somewhat above the state average of 1.14 hearings per general district case.

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported 2,268 new cases, 6,836 hearings and 2,201 dispositions. These 1983 statistics were all lower than their 1982 counterparts. Adult new cases fell by eight percent and totaled 742 for the year. Juvenile cases decreased by 35 and numbered 1,526 or 67 percent of the total juvenile and domestic relations caseload. Statewide, juvenile cases represented 61 percent of the juvenile and domestic relations cases.

The six magistrates of the district reported working a total of 9,806 hours in 1983. During this time they received nearly 32,000 telephone calls and in-person inquiries. Additionally they issued 18,220 processes out of the 20,766 requested. Of the 8,177 arrest warrants requested, 753 felony warrants, 3,690 misdemeanor warrants and 3,189 summonses were issued. Secured bonds totaled 1,033 and represented one-fourth of the total bonds issued in 1983. Of the 3,243 unsecured bonds, 89 percent were for misdemeanor charges. The magistrates of the district also issued 94 search warrants, 32 temporary mental detention orders and 16 subpoenas, in addition to processing 5,862 jail committals and releases. Prepayments for the year included 307 for traffic infractions and 1 for a Class IV misdemeanor.

NINETEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Nineteenth Judicial Circuit includes Fairfax County and the cities of Fairfax and Falls Church. During the ten year span 1970 through 1980, the circuit's population grew by 28 percent to reach 625,806, the most populous of the circuits. Additionally, the circuit's juvenile population, 182,215, ranked highest throughout the state.

The circuit was authorized eleven judgeships in 1983. Serving were F. Bruce Bach, Barbara M. Keenan, Lewis H. Griffith, Richard J. Jamborsky, Barnard F. Jennings, Thomas J. Middleton, Jr., Jack B. Stevens, J. Howe Brown, Jr., William G. Plummer, Johanna L. Fitzpatrick, Quinlan H. Hancock and Burch Milsap who retired on October 1, 1983. Serving the general district court were G. William Hammer, Richard T. Horan, Robert M. Hurst, Stewart P. Davis, Frank B. Perry III, Thomas J. Rothrock and J. Conrad Waters, Jr. During the year the district was authorized five juvenile and domestic relations judgeships. These positions were filled by Frank L. Deierhoi, who retired on March 1, 1983, Jane Pritchard Delbridge, Thomas J. Fortkort, Arnold B. Kassabian, Michael J. Valentine and Gaylord L. Finch, Jr. On an average, the authorized district court judges used 25.8 substitute and recalled retired judge days each in FY 83.

With 11,248 civil cases, the circuit had the largest number of civil filings throughout the 31 circuits. Additionally, its criminal caseload of 4,994 ranked second largest. Overall, the 16,242 commenced cases reflected a 13 percent increase over the previous year's figure. The composition of the commenced caseload was 23 percent law, 47 percent equity, 18 percent felony and 12 percent misdemeanor. The statewide breakout was 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. Although the total number of cases concluded during the year fell slightly to 14,595, the number of cases concluded by a jury rose from 498 in 1982 to 512 in 1983. Of the 9,818 concluded civil cases 41 percent reached disposition within one year of filing. On the criminal side of the court, 95 percent of the 4,777 concluded cases were disposed of within five months of initiation.

The 1983 general district caseload included 172,349 new cases, 184,684 hearings and 173,316 dispositions. Among all districts, the Nineteenth ranked third highest in terms of total new cases. The district's traffic caseload of 125,838 new cases was highest throughout the state. Within the district, Fairfax County reported a 10 percent growth in the number of new cases and Fairfax City's caseload increased by 17 percent. In contrast, Falls Church reported a 23 percent decrease. The composition of the general district caseload was 73 percent traffic, 16 percent civil and 11 percent criminal.

Even though the juvenile and domestic relations courts reported a five percent decrease in the number of cases, the district's new caseload (19,059) ranked second highest throughout the state. Accounting for nearly three-fourths of the new cases, juvenile cases totaled 13,639 for the year. More juvenile cases were initiated in the Nineteenth District than in any other judicial district. For 1983, the courts also reported that 29,867 hearings were held and 19,192 dispositions achieved.

The Nineteenth District was authorized 31 magistrate positions during the last year. The magistrates reported working a total of 44,288 hours during which they received over 115,000 individual inquiries. They also handled 109,617 requests for processes. Of this number 83 percent or 91,009 resulted in a process being issued. The district ranked second highest among the state's 32 districts for the number of processes issued in 1983. Arrest warrants (25,822) and jail committals/releases (37,733) accounted for 70 percent of the processes issued. Bonds were issued at a rate of 5.6 per every 10 requested. Unsecured bonds totaled 13,223 of which 93 percent were for misdemeanor charges. The magistrates also processed prepayments for 5,047 traffic infractions and 1,918 Class IV misdemeanors during the past year.

TWENTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twentieth Judicial Circuit serves the northern Virginia counties of Fauquier, Loudoun and Rappahannock. Increasing significantly by 45 percent from 1970 to 1980, this area's population reached 99,409. The Bureau of the Census also reported that 31,228 juveniles were included in the 1980 population count.

Serving the circuit throughout 1983 were Judges Thomas D. Horne, Carlton Penn and William S. Robertson. The area was also authorized four district court judgeships. Judges Archibald M. Aiken, Jr. and John Alexander presided in the general district courts while Judges A. Burke Hertz and John P. Ryan heard juvenile and domestic relations cases. On an average, each of the four district court judges utilized 14 assistance days during FY 83. This measure was well below the state mean of 22.6 days.

In 1983 the circuit had the distinction of having the lowest criminal caseload, 841 cases, among the 31 circuits. The courts reported that a total of 2,322 cases were commenced last year, eight percent fewer than in 1982. Within the circuit, Rappahannock was the sole locality to record a caseload growth, 10 percent or 12 cases. The caseload of Loudoun fell by 133 cases (nine percent) and Fauquier's decreased by 84 cases or nine percent. The composition of the Twentieth's commenced caseload was 23 percent law, 41 percent equity, 26 percent felony and 10 percent misdemeanor. This caseload was weighted more heavily with civil cases than the statewide caseload split of 55 percent civil and 45 percent criminal. The number of cases concluded by the courts, 2,489, was consistent with the previous year's total. However, the number of cases concluded by a jury fell from the 187 recorded in 1982 to 122 in 1983. Slightly more than half, 705, of the 1,381 concluded civil cases, reached disposition within twelve months of filing. For the 1,108 concluded criminal cases, 660, or 60 percent, were concluded within five months of filing.

There were 28,873 new cases and 32,747 hearings in the general district courts during 1983. New cases were five percent higher than in 1982; hearings fell by two percent or 808. There was significant change in the composition of the caseload. The additional 2,058 traffic cases offset the declines in criminal (-638) and civil (-106) cases. The resulting caseload composition was 13 percent criminal, 69 percent traffic and 18 percent civil. Statewide, these proportions were 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. All localities within the district reported increases in new cases for 1983: Fauquier, 11 percent; Loudoun, 0.5 percent and Rappahannock, 14 percent.

Declining by nearly 10 percent, new juvenile and domestic relations cases totaled 3,926 for the year. Juvenile cases accounted for 60 percent of these, similar to the statewide proportion. Decreases in new cases were noted by all localities with the most significant change reported by Rappahannock, a 21 percent drop. Although the number of hearings held in 1983 was somewhat lower than in the previous year, the courts reported that dispositions increased by 81 and totaled 4,033 for 1983.

The Twentieth District was authorized nine magistrates who reported 6,729 hours of activity in 1983. The magistrates logged 22,664 miles in response to the 13,832 requests for processes. These latter transactions were 13 percent less than the 15,949 requests reported for 1982. Also declining by 13 percent, processes totaled 11,762 for the year. These were issued for 85 percent of the requests. Arrest warrant processes included 610 felonies, 3,606 misdemeanors and 739 summonses. Bonds were issued at a rate of 6.7 for every 10 requested. Unsecured bonds numbered 1,994 and represented 81 percent of the total granted. Secured bonds, 458, included 121 for felony charges. Committals and releasees were listed as 1,891 and 1,776, respectively. In all, the magistrates processed 472 prepayments for traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors.

TWENTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Henry and Patrick and the city of Martinsville comprise the Twenty-First Judicial Circuit. Listed at 93,450, the circuit's 1980 population reflected a nine percent growth when compared to the 1970 census. Of the total population, 26,573 (or 28%) were under the age of eighteen.

The circuit was authorized two judgeships in 1983. Serving the area were Judges Frank I. Richardson, Jr. and Kenneth M. Covington. The general district court cases were handled by J. Frank Greenwalt, Jr. and Charles M. Stone. One juvenile and domestic relations judgeship was authorized for the Twenty-First District. Judge J. English Ford served the district until his retirement on August 1, 1983. Junius P. Warren was elected to fill the juvenile and domestic relations vacancy. The three district court judges used, on the average, 19 substitute and recalled retired judge days each during the last fiscal year. This measure was somewhat below the state mean of 22.6 days.

The commenced caseload of the circuit grew by eight percent over 1982's figure of 2,970 and reached 3,217 by the close of last year. Although the number of civil cases fell slightly by 11, the criminal caseload experienced a growth of 15 percent, or 258 more cases than in 1982. Within the circuit, Henry and Martinsville both reported a 131 case growth over the previous year. Patrick's commenced caseload fell by a total of 15 cases. The caseload composition of the Twenty-First Circuit was 21 percent law, 22 percent equity, 25 percent felony and 32 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was weighted more heavily with misdemeanor cases then the statewide percentage of 16 percent. The circuit reported that 3,021 cases were concluded throughout the year, 401 more than in 1982. Of this number, 88 cases involved a jury trial. The age of concluded cases indicated that 57 percent of the 1,084 concluded civil cases reached disposition within twelve months of filing. For the 1,937 concluded criminal cases, 1,776 (or 92%) were concluded within five months of initiation.

In 1983, the general district courts' caseload included 19,981 new cases and 24,646 hearings, representing declines of eight and nine percent, respectively. Although decreases were noted for all case types, civil fell substantially by 1,282 new cases. Generally, the caseload composition was one-fifth criminal, and two-fifths each, traffic and civil. This distribution varied from the statewide caseload composition of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. Within the district, Patrick County was the sole locality to report a higher 1983 caseload than in 1982. Their increase was one of 35 cases.

Following the statewide trend, the district recorded a decrease in juvenile new cases (-6%) and an increase in adult cases (16%). In addition to the 3,643 new cases, the courts reported 4,512 hearings and 3,241 dispositions for 1983. New cases were divided 51 percent juvenile and 49 percent adult. This composition was weighted more heavily with adult cases than the statewide caseload proportion of 39 percent adult. Caseload increases were noted in Henry County (1%) and Martinsville (15%).

The Twenty-First District was authorized nine magistrates during 1983. The magistrates received and reviewed 24,653 requests for processes. Of the requests, 94 percent or 23,222 resulted in a process being issued. Both the number of transactions and processes declined by 15 percent from the previous year's figures. During the course of their 12,932 activity hours, the magistrates received 5,864 requests for arrest warrants. They issued 5,426 including 679 for felonies, 4,677 for misdemeanors and 70 summonses. Of the 3,272 bond requests 1,300 secured and 1,091 unsecured were issued. A total of 7,240 civil warrants, 3,609 committals/releases, and 4,418 subpoenas were also processed.

TWENTY-SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Second Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Franklin and Pittsylvania and the city of Danville. The area's population grew to 147,529 in 1980, an increase of 11 percent from 1970. The number of residents in Franklin and Pittsylvania increased by 27 percent and 13 percent, respectively while Danville's population fell by 2 percent. According to the 1980 census the population figure included 40,004 juveniles.

Serving the circuit courts of the Twenty-Second were Beverly A. Davis III, Samuel M. Hairston and James F. Ingram. Two judgeships were also authorized for the general district courts. These were filled by T. Ryland Dodson and F. Nelson Light. Judge Light has announced his intention to retire on September 1, 1984. The 1984 General Assembly elected William N. Alexander II to fill the vacancy. Judges Spiros B. Skenderis and Robert F. Ward sat in the juvenile and domestic relations courts throughout the year. On an average, each district court judge used 22.3 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the last fiscal year.

The circuit reported that 4,538 cases were commenced during the year, 203 more than in 1982. Ranking seventh throughout the 31 circuits, the Twenty-Second's criminal caseload numbered 2,476 for the year. Danville and Pittsylvania reported case growths of 173 and 81, respectively. Franklin's commenced caseload fell by 51 in comparison to their 1982 figure. The composition of the circuit's 1983 caseload was 19 percent law, 26 percent equity, 32 percent felony and 23 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was weighted more heavily with criminal cases than the statewide proportion of 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. Concluded cases totaled 5,226 for the year. Of these cases, 157 involved a jury trial. Slightly more than two-thirds of the concluded cases reached disposition within twelve months of initiation. For the 3,038 concluded criminal cases, 97 percent were completed within five months of filing.

Caseloads in the general district courts declined slightly in 1983. A total of 33,806 cases were reported, 1,436 fewer than in 1982. The overall decrease was attributable to a 17 percent drop in civil and 4 percent decline in criminal cases. Districtwide, only traffic cases increased; they reached 15,671 for the year. Caseload make-up was 23 percent criminal, 46 percent traffic, and 31 percent civil. This distribution was weighted more heavily in criminal and civil cases than the statewide averages of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

The juvenile and domestic relations district courts also noted a small decrease (less than 1 percent) in caseload. New cases totaled 5,248; hearings rose to 12,059 and there were 4,427 dispositions reported during the year. The two judges of the juvenile and domestic relations court saw adult cases rise in Franklin and Pittsylvania counties (7 percent and 10 percent, respectively) and juvenile cases increased only in the city of Danville. The distribution of cases was 64 percent juvenile and 36 percent adult. Statewide the average was 61 percent juvenile and 39 percent adult.

Working a total of 18,815 hours, the eleven magistrates received over 20,000 inquiries from the public during 1983. In carrying out their duties, the magistrates logged 17,632 miles in response to 39,095 requests for processes. Processes, totaling 31,277, were issued for 80 percent of the requests, somewhat lower than the statewide average of 83 percent. Of the 10,022 requests for arrest warrants, the magistrates issued 1,182 felony warrants, 7,059 misdemeanor warrants and 638 summonses. Bonds were granted at a rate of 5.3 for every 10 requested. Unsecured bonds totaled 3,866 and accounted for 69 percent of all the bonds issued in 1983. Of the 1,702 secured bonds, 1,258 were for misdemeanor charges. Civil warrants processed totaled 7,581; issued subpoenas numbered 679 and 169 temporary mental detention orders were executed. Throughout the year, the magistrates also issued 4,367 committals and 3,567 releases.

TWENTY-THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Third Judicial Circuit includes the cities of Roanoke and Salem and Roanoke County. Compared with the 1970 population count, the number of individuals residing in the Twenty-Third rose by nine percent and numbered 197,123 in 1980. Of this number 25 percent, or 49,895, were under the age of eighteen.

Five circuit judgeships were authorized for the Twenty-Third. Serving were: Ernest W. Ballou, Jack B. Coulter, Frederick L. Hoback, Lawrence L. Koontz, Jr., and Kenneth E. Trabue. During 1983, Judges James P. Brice, Gerald O. Clemens, Charles O. Cornelison, Edward S. Kidd, Jr. and Arthur B. Crush, Jr. handled the general district court caseload. In addition, these judges provided regular assistance to the Twenty-Seventh Judicial District. Judge Cornelison resigned on March 1, 1984, and the General Assembly elected Julian H. Raney, Jr. to fill the vacancy. Sitting in juvenile and domestic relations courts were James W. Flippin, Frederick L. Hoback, Jr. and Roy B. Willet. The Judges of the district used 134.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the last fiscal year for an average of 16.8 days each, below the state mean of 22.6.

The circuit reported that 6,722 cases were commenced during 1983, 37 fewer than in 1982. The circuit ranked fifth highest throughout the 31 circuits in both the area of civil cases (3,084) and criminal cases (3,638) commenced. Within the circuit, Roanoke City was the sole locality to report a higher 1983 caseload than in 1982. Growing by 188 cases, this court noted a five percent caseload growth. The composition of the circuit's commenced caseload was 17 percent law, 29 percent equity, 42 percent felony and 12 percent misdemeanor. During the year, 6,240 cases were concluded by the circuit's three courts. The number of cases concluded by a jury trial grew significantly from the 84 reported in 1982 to 1983's figure of 114. Of the 2,851 concluded civil cases, 1,360, or 48 percent, were concluded within twelve months of filing. For the 3,389 concluded criminal cases, 90 percent were concluded within five months of initiation.

Ranking sixth highest in the state, the general district courts recorded 77,948 new cases and 86,595 hearings in 1983. In addition, the district's caseload was ranked fifth highest in criminal cases (17,060) and third highest in civil cases (27,823). Within the district, the most significant increase occurred in Roanoke County where a 52 percent rise in civil cases was noted. The district's caseload distribution was 22 percent criminal, 42 percent traffic, and 36 percent civil. This caseload makeup was weighted far more heavily in civil cases than the statewide average of 29 percent civil cases.

The three judges of the juvenile and domestic relations district courts handled 5,771 juvenile and 3,685 adult new cases during the year. Adult cases rose by 13 percent, accounting for the overall caseload increase of 1 percent. Within the district, the juvenile caseload jumped 15 percent in Salem but declined in the other two localities. Hearings per case ratio was measured at 2.00.

The Twenty-Third District was authorized eleven magistrates in 1983. A total of 65,635 requests for processes, 22,676 telephone calls and 9,490 in-person inquiries were handled during the magistrates combined 18,056 activity hours. Although transactions declined by seven percent from the number reported in 1982, the number of processes issued in 1983 was four percent greater. Reported as 53,874, the district's process activity was the third highest throughout the state. Slightly more than 20,000 requests for arrest warrants were reviewed during the year. For these requests, 2,274 felony warrants, 13,985 misdemeanor warrants and 1,148 summonses were issued. Bonds were granted at a rate of five for every ten requested. Of the 5,187 unsecured bonds, 90 percent were for misdemeanor charges. The magistrates reported processing 25,639 committals and releases, 1,492 subpoenas, 177 temporary mental detention orders and 92 search warrants.

TWENTY-FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Fourth Judicial Circuit is comprised of the counties of Amherst, Bedford, Campbell and Nelson and the cities of Bedford and Lynchburg. The 1980 population of the circuit was 194,411 of which 52,538 were juveniles. With the exception of Bedford City, all localities experienced a growth in population between 1970 and 1980. Most notably, Bedford County and Lynchburg reported increases of 31 percent and 23 percent, respectively.

Serving the Twenty-Fourth Judicial Circuit in 1983 were Judges J. Samuel Johnston, Jr., Robert C. Goad, Norman K. Moon and William W. Sweeney. The district was also authorized seven judgeships. Sitting in the general district courts were James S. Farmer, Jesse C. Crumbley III, Coy M. Kiser, Jr., and Richard S. Miller. Judge Kiser also provided assistance on a regular basis to the Twenty-Fifth District. During the year, the juvenile and domestic relations cases were handled by Judges Dale H. Harris, Lawrence Janow, and W. Raymond Minnix. The judges of the district averaged 22 assistance days each during the past fiscal year. This measure was comparable to the state mean of 22.6.

Decreasing by five percent from 1982, the commenced caseload of the circuit totaled 4,599. Decreases were noted both with the number of civil cases (-7%) and criminal cases (-3%) commenced. Even with this decline, the circuit had the ninth largest criminal caseload among the state's 31 circuits. Within the Twenty-Fourth, modest increases were noted with the caseloads of Amherst (20 additional cases) and Bedford (61 cases). The 1983 caseload composition of the circuit was 18 percent law, 30 percent equity, 36 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. During the year, the circuit reported that 4,542 cases were concluded in the courts. Of this number, 188 involved a jury trial. A total of 1,241 cases, or 57 percent of the 2,175 concluded civil cases were terminated within one year of filing. Of the 2,367 concluded criminal cases, 2,060 (or 87%) were disposed of within five months of initiation.

The general district courts reported 51,617 new cases and 63,795 hearings in 1983, both declining by four percent from the previous year. Districtwide criminal and civil cases fell from their respective 1982 levels while the number of traffic cases increased by slightly more than 1,000. Within the district, Bedford was the sole court to report growth (7%) in their new caseload. Decreases ranged from one percent in Amherst to ten percent in Campbell. The composition of the district's caseload was 22 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 23 percent civil.

The caseload of the juvenile and domestic relations courts rose by five percent and totaled 7,584 for the year. This change was the result of 85 fewer adult filings offset by an additional 411 juvenile cases. The district ranked seventh and eighth highest in total adult and juvenile cases, respectively, among the 32 districts for these measures. Overall, the district's total new cases was ninth largest in 1983. Caseload increases were reported by Campbell (21%), Amherst (4%) and Lynchburg (4%).

Eighteen magistrates were authorized in the Twenty-Fourth Judicial District. In 1983, they reported 26,415 hours of activity during which they received 25,779 telephone calls and 7,080 in-person inquiries. In responding to 34,636 requests for processes, the magistrates reported driving 37,142 miles. Of the total requests for processes, 80 percent or 27,814 resulted in the issuance of a process. Transactions and processes declined by 13 percent and 14 percent, respectively from the numbers reported in 1982. Of the 16,407 arrest warrants requested 82 percent were issued. Bond requests numbered 11,057 of which 6,460 unsecured and 985 secured bonds were issued. The magistrates also issued 3,907 jail committals/releases, 2,628 subpoenas, 109 search warrants, 92 temporary mental detention orders and 44 civil warrants during the past year.

TWENTY-FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Alleghany, Augusta, Bath, Botetourt, Craig, Highland and Rockbridge and the cities of Buena Vista, Clifton Forge, Covington, Lexington, Staunton and Waynesboro make up the Twenty-Fifth Judicial Circuit. According to the Bureau of the Census, the population of the circuit was 187,295 in 1980 which reflected an eight percent growth over the 1970 census listing. Juveniles numbered 49,309 and represented 26 percent of the 1980 population.

Effective July 1, 1983, the circuit was authorized four judgeships. Serving in this capacity were William S. Moffett, Jr., Rudolph Bumgardner III, Duncan M. Byrd, Jr. and George E. Honts III. Judge Moffett retired on January 1, 1984 and the General Assembly elected Thomas H. Wood to fill the vacancy. Serving the general district courts were Thomas H. Wood, Joseph E. Hess, Elmer C. Westerman, Jr. and William E. Carson, Sr. The area also received regular assistance from Judge Coy Kiser, Twenty-Fourth District. Judges Robert S. Culpepper, John B. Curry II and Harrison May served as juvenile and domestic relations judges. The district court judges used, on the average, 13.9 substitute and recalled retired judge days each during FY 83. This measure was well below the state mean of 22.6 days.

The circuit reported that 4,621 cases were commenced during the past year. The circuit's civil caseload of 2,671 ranked as the seventh largest among the 31 circuits. Within the Twenty-Fifth, six localities reported a caseload growth when compared to their respective 1982 levels: Bath (23%), Botetourt (22%), Alleghany (18%), Buena Vista (10%), Rockbridge (7%) and Clifton Forge (1%). The composition of the circuit's commenced caseload was 17 percent law, 41 percent equity, 27 percent felony and 15 percent misdemeanor. By the close of the year 4,168 cases had been concluded by the circuit's courts. A total of 1,159 or 54 percent of the 2,139 concluded civil cases reached a disposition within twelve months of filing. Concluded within five months of initiation, were 1,759 (87%) cases out of a total of 2,029 criminal cases concluded during the year.

With 66,100 new general district court cases, the district had the tenth highest caseload throughout the sate. Compared with the previous year, civil cases declined by 2,171 while criminal and traffic cases increased by three percent and eight percent, respectively. The composition of the caseload was 18 percent criminal, 68 percent traffic and 14 percent civil. Within the district, half of the courts reported increased caseloads for 1983. The range of growth was nine percent in Alleghany to 23 percent in Botetourt.

Districtwide, five percent fewer J&DR cases were initiated in 1983 than in 1982. Also ranking tenth highest among the 32 districts, the courts commenced 6,142 cases last year. Although juvenile cases fell by 446, adult cases were reported to include a 114 case increase. Significant changes were reported by the courts in the Twenty-Fifth District. These included a 35 percent drop in Lexington's new caseload to a 27 percent rise in Craig's filings.

The Twenty-Fifth District was authorized 31 magistrates during the past year. They worked a combined total of 24,164 hours. During that time they drove nearly 71,000 miles; received 27,000 inquiries from the public and reviewed 31,748 requests for processes. This latter transaction was 11 percent higher than 1982's 28,707. The magistrates reported that 26,843 processes were issued in 1983. Arrest warrants (11,935) and jail committals/releases (6,783) accounted for 70 percent of the process activity. Bonds were granted at a rate of eight per every ten requested. Of the 4,119 unsecured bonds, 94 percent were for misdemeanor charges. In comparison, secured bonds included 1,413 (77%) for misdemeanors. In 1983, 1,300 subpoenas, 101 search warrants, 74 temporary mental detention orders and 30 civil warrants were issued in this district.

TWENTY-SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The Twenty-Sixth Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Clarke, Frederick, Page, Rockingham, Shenandoah and Warren, as well as the cities of Harrisonburg and Winchester. According to the Bureau of the Census, the 1980 population of the circuit increased 24 percent since 1970 to total 209,102. All localities grew in the number of residents during the decade with the most significant changes occurring in Warren (39%), Winchester (38%) and Harrisonburg (35%). Of the circuit's total population, 26 percent (or 54,937) were under the age of eighteen.

Effective July 1, 1983, the number of authorized circuit court judges was increased to four. Serving as judges were Henry H. Whiting, Joshua L. Robinson, Robert K. Woltz and Perry W. Sarver. Four judgeships were also authorized for the general district courts and were filled by Robert E. Hayes, John A. Paul, Harold G. Potts and David G. Simpson. Serving as authorized judges for the juvenile and domestic relations courts were B. B. Bowers and Carle F. Germelman, Jr. The six district court judges used an average of 22.4 assistance days each during FY 83, comparable to the state mean of 22.6.

The circuit reported that 4,548 cases were initiated during 1983, a six percent gain over 1982's figure of 4,290. With a criminal caseload of 2,371, the circuit recorded the tenth highest number of criminal cases commenced. Within the circuit, increased caseloads were noted by Warren (68%), Frederick (7%), Winchester (4%) and Rockingham (2%). The composition of the Twenty-Sixth's 1983 commenced caseload was 15 percent law, 33 percent equity, 42 percent felony and 10 percent misdemeanor. In comparison, the statewide proportions were: 21 percent law, 34 percent equity, 29 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor. The circuit experienced an eight percent gain in the number of cases concluded during 1983. Nearly seven percent of the 4,388 concluded cases involved a jury trial. Up from the 266 reported in 1982, cases concluded by a jury rose to 301 in 1983. Sixty percent of the 2,146 concluded civil cases were disposed of within twelve months of filing. For the 2,242 criminal cases concluded during the year, 74 percent reached a disposition within five months of filing.

The general district courts of the district reported the seventh largest caseload (74,072 new cases) in 1983. Additionally, 82,347 hearings were held and 75,985 dispositions were achieved during the year. Slightly more than 6,000 fewer cases were initiated in 1983 than in 1982. Interestingly, all courts reported a decline in the total number of filings for the year. The composition of the new caseload was 15 percent criminal, 64 percent traffic and 21 percent civil. In comparison, the statewide caseload was distributed 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

Achieving a rank of ninth, the district also reported that 7,932 juvenile and domestic relations cases were commenced in 1983. This caseload was five percent higher than in the previous year and included 439 additional adult and 53 fewer juvenile cases. Increases were noted in the caseloads of Frederick (35%), Winchester (19%), Shenandoah (13%), Warren (10%) and Clarke (9%). With 10,857 hearings reported, the district's hearings per case ratio of 1.49 was well below the state measure of 1.90.

During 1983, 19 magistrate positions were authorized for the Twenty-Sixth District. The magistrates reported 18,633 hours of activity during which they received 9,103 telephone calls and 5,621 inquiries. They handled 36,260 requests for processes, which reflected a 13 percent drop from the 41,854 received in 1982. The magistrates issued 1,137 felony warrants, 10,846 misdemeanor warrants and 1,378 summonses in response to the 14,583 requests for arrest warrants. Bond processes numbered 8,314 for 1983. Of the 1,912 secured bonds, only 15 were for felony charges. In addition to processing 8,725 jail committals and releases, the magistrates issued 285 civil warrants, 196 subpoenas, 97 search warrants and 72 temporary mental detention orders.

TWENTY-SEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Carroll, Floyd, Grayson, Montgomery, Pulaski and Wythe along with the cities of Galax and Radford comprise the Twenty-Seventh Judicial Circuit. Since 1970, the population of the area has grown by 21 percent to a 1980 figure of 199,428. According to the Bureau of the Census, the juvenile population reached 49,124.

As of July 1, 1983, the circuit was authorized four judgeships. Filling these positions were R. William Arthur, Kenneth I. Devore, Duane E. Mink, A. Dow Owens and Dale W. LaRue, who retired on July 1, 1983. The district was authorized six judgeships. Serving the general district courts were George B. Cooley, James H. Joines and John C. Snidow, Jr. Juvenile and domestic relations cases were heard by William F. Thomas, Jr., Jacque Wayne Pierce and James L. Tompkins. During FY 83, the district's six judges used 138.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days for an average of 23.1 assistance days each.

Experiencing a nine percent decline from the 4,449 cases reported in 1982, the circuit's commenced caseload fell to 4,066 in 1983. The number of commenced criminal cases decreased significantly, a 14 percent or 280 case drop. Each reporting a five percent increase, Pulaski and Wythe were the only courts to record a higher caseload than in the previous year. Decreases ranged from a 10 percent drop in Montgomery's caseload to a 33 percent decline in the number of cases initiated in Grayson. The composition of the Twenty-Seventh's commenced caseload was 20 percent law, 36 percent equity, 33 percent felony and 11 percent misdemeanor. By the close of 1983, 3,807 cases reached disposition in the circuit's courts. Cases concluded by a jury trial decreased from 136 in 1982 to 122 in 1983, although the frequency of jury trials remained constant at three percent. A total of 1,231 or 56 percent of the 2,179 concluded civil cases were disposed of within twelve months of filing. Nearly four-fifths of the 1,628 concluded criminal cases reached a disposition within five months of initiation.

New cases in the general district courts increased slightly in 1983 and totaled 57,495. Although the number of criminal new cases fell by nine percent from the previous year, traffic and civil cases grew by 10 and 4 percent, respectively. Within the district, Radford reported the most significant change, a 40 percent gain in new case filings. The district's 1983 caseload composition was 21 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 24 percent civil. Proportionally, the district's caseload was weighted more heavily with criminal cases compared to the statewide percentage of 16 percent.

The juvenile and domestic relations courts reported a 1983 caseload that included 6,054 new cases, 10,857 hearings and 5,524 dispositions. Juvenile new cases, representing 58 percent of the total cases, decreased by six percent from the number reported in 1982. The 2,529 adult cases included 46 more filings. Four localities recorded increases in their new cases for the year: Galax (28%), Grayson (17%, Wythe (7%) and Carroll (4%).

The district was authorized 23 magistrate positions last year. During their 30,848 hours of activity, the magistrates received 49,591 requests for processes, 11 percent fewer than in 1982. Processes were executed for 84 percent of the requests. Issuing 41,753 processes, the district ranked seventh highest throughout the state in regard to the total number of processes issued in 1983. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 8.7 per 10 requested, similar to 1982's rate of 8.6:10. Of the 1,876 secured bonds 1,343 (or 72%) were issued for misdemeanor charges. Among the unsecured bonds, misdemeanors represented 95 percent of those issued. The magistrates processed 4,685 civil warrants, 2,338 subpoenas, 231 temporary mental detention orders and 81 search warrants during the last calendar year.

TWENTY-EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Included within the Twenty-Eighth Judicial Circuit are the counties of Smyth and Washington and the city of Bristol. In 1980, the Bureau of the Census reported a total population of 98,895 for the area. This recent census listing was 14 percent higher than 1970's. Juveniles under the age of eighteen numbered 26,953 in 1980.

Charles B. Flannagan II and J. Aubrey Matthews served as authorized circuit court judges throughout 1983. This district courts were authorized four judgeships. Sitting in the general district courts were David D. Brown and T. L. Hutton, Jr. The juvenile and domestic relations cases were heard by Judges Charles H. Smith, Jr. and Eugene E. Lohman. The district court judges each averaged 22.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days during FY 83, identical to the state mean.

The courts of the circuit reported that 2,206 cases were commenced in 1983, 111 more than in 1982. Civil cases grew by nine percent and reached 1,346 for the year. Recorded at 860 cases, the criminal caseload ranked as the second smallest among the 31 circuits. All localities within the circuit reported a growth in the number of 1983 cases: Smyth, 68 additional cases; Bristol, 26 additional cases, and Washington a 17 case increase. The distribution of the 1983 caseload was 26 percent law (including habeaus corpus), 37 percent equity, 27 percent felony and 10 percent misdemeanor. Slightly more than 200 additional cases were concluded in 1983 than in the previous year. Of the 2,257 concluded, 101 involved a jury trial. The number of cases concluded by a jury fell from the 129 recorded in 1982. Concluded civil cases numbered 1,332 for the year—70 percent of which reached disposition within twelve months of filing. For the 925 criminal cases concluded during 1983, 700 were terminated within five months of initiation.

Compared with the previous year, the Twenty-Eighth District reported 2,417 fewer cases in 1983. Of the 26,714 new cases, 26 percent were criminal, 57 percent were traffic and 17 percent were civil in nature. This distribution varied from the statewide composition of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. Civil cases increased by seven percent while criminal and traffic cases fell by ten percent and eleven percent, respectively. All localities in the district reported a decline in the number of total new cases: Smyth, 694 fewer; Washington, 307 less; and Bristol, down by 1,416 cases.

Reported at a level of 12 percent higher than in 1982, the new J&DR caseload of the district reached 5,892 at the close of 1983. This caseload reflected a 23 percent rise in the number of adult cases and a six percent jump in juvenile cases. New cases were distributed 59 percent juvenile and 41 percent adult. Bristol and Washington reported caseload increases of 21 percent and 18 percent, respectively. New cases in Smyth fell by 15 percent in 1983. The courts of the area also reported that 9,587 hearings were held during the year. The hearings per case ratio of 1.63 was below the statewide average of 1.90 hearings per juvenile and domestic relations cases.

Ten magistrates were authorized for the Twenty-Eighth District during 1983. They reported receiving 27,616 requests for processes during their 12,909 hours of service. Eighty-five percent or 23,610 of the requests resulted in a process being issued. Both transactions and processes declined by 19 percent when compared with the 1982 workload. For the 9,405 requests for arrest warrants, the magistrates issued 840 felony warrants, 6,863 misdemeanor warrants and 510 summonses. Secured bonds numbered 1,679 or 32 percent of the total bonds issued. Of the 3,510 unsecured bonds, 96 percent were for misdemeanor charges. During the last year, 1,441 subpoenas, 55 temporary mental detention orders and 45 search warrants were granted by the magistrates of the Twenty-Eighth. Committals and releases numbered 4,440 and 4,156, respectively.

TWENTY-NINTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The southwestern counties of Bland, Buchanan, Dickenson, Giles, Russell, and Tazewell comprise the Twenty-Ninth Judicial Circuit. Listed at 164,226, this area's population increased 22 percent between 1970 and 1980. Within the circuit, all localities experienced a growth in the number of residents. According to the Bureau of the Census, the 1980 population count included 51,271 juveniles.

Serving as circuit court judges during 1983 were Nicholas E. Persin, Glyn R. Phillips and Robert Lee Powell. The district courts were authorized five judgeships in 1983. Hearing cases in the general district courts were Thomas J. Bondurant, Wade S. Coates and Pat B. Hale. Sitting in the juvenile and domestic relations courts were Susan Bundy and Charles B. Andrews. Judge Andrews retired on January 1, 1984, and the General Assembly elected J. Wesley McClintock III to fill the vacancy. The judges of the district used, on the average, 22.5 assistance days each during FY 83, comparable to the state mean of 22.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days per district court judge.

The Twenty-Ninth Circuit reported that 4,015 cases were commenced during 1983, twelve percent fewer than in 1982. The criminal caseload of 2,352 cases ranked tenth highest throughout the state's 31 circuits. Increases in caseload were reported in only two localities: Giles (18 cases) and Dickenson (4 cases). The commenced caseload of the circuit was distributed as follows: 28 percent law, 31 percent equity, 24 percent felony and 17 percent misdemeanor. By the close of 1983, the circuit reported that 4,224 cases had reached disposition, 666 fewer than the 4,890 concluded in 1982. The number of cases concluded by a jury trial increased slightly from 1982 and totaled 149 for the year. Nearly 55 percent of the 2,616 concluded civil cases reached termination within twelve months of filing. For the 1,608 concluded criminal cases, 1,109 (or 69%) cases were concluded within five months of initiation.

The general district courts of the district reported a 1983 caseload that included 48,529 new cases, 53,248 hearings and 47,065 dispositions. Within the district, Bland's caseload grew significantly by 74 percent or 4,517 more cases than were reported in 1982. This particular change was the result of a dramatic increase in traffic cases, a 77 percent jump. Buchanan, Dickenson and Giles each reported an 11 percent decline in cases, while the caseload of Russell fell by 14 percent and Tazewell's by 3 percent. The district's caseload composition for 1983 was 21 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 24 percent civil.

During 1983, 6,000 cases were initiated in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts, 10 fewer than in 1982. The courts also reported that 12,699 hearings were held and 4,868 dispositions were achieved during the year. The district's hearings per case ratio, 2.12, was somewhat higher than the rural average of 1.90 hearings per juvenile and domestic relations cases. Within the district Bland, Russell and Tazewell reported higher caseload than in the previous year. Among the localities noting decreases, Dickenson's was most significant (-30%).

This southwestern district was authorized 21 magistrate positions. The magistrates reported 23,939 hours of service during which they received 16,875 telephone calls and 7,445 in-person inquiries. They handled 54,018 requests for processes, a 16 percent drop from 1982's 64,394 transactions. Processes, likewise, fell by 16 percent and totaled 48,583. Even with this decline, the district's level of issued processes ranked sixth highest among the 32 districts. The magistrates issued 14,037 arrest warrants, of which 1,583 were for felonies; 12,254 for misdemeanors, and 200 summonses. Bonds were issued at a rate of 6.7 per 10 requested. Of the 3,481 secured bonds, 679 were for felony charges. Misdemeanors represented 95 percent of the 5,520 unsecured bonds. The magistrates also processed 9,001 civil warrants, 2,158 subpoenas, 74 temporary mental detention orders and 62 search warrants during 1983.

THIRTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The counties of Lee, Scott and Wise as well as the city of Norton comprise the Thirtieth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 population of this southwestern circuit was 99,644 and represented an increase of 17 percent since 1970. Of the total population, 29,586 were individuals under the age of eighteen. Within the circuit, significant increases were noted in Lee (28%), Wise (22%) and Norton (14%).

During 1983, the Thirtieth was authorized three circuit court judgeships. Serving as judges were S. W. Coleman III, M. M. Long, Jr. and John Robert Stump. Judges William C. Fugate and Monti S. Meeks sat in the district's general district courts while Judges James C. Roberson and Richard E. Smith heard juvenile and domestic relations cases. Judge Smith resigned April 16, 1984. The four district court judges used, on the average, 25.3 substitute and recalled retired judge days each during the last fiscal year.

Declining by six percent from 1982's figure of 3,722, the commenced caseload of the circuit totaled 3,495 for the year. Decreases were noted both in the number of civil filings (-106 cases) and in the number of criminal cases (-121). With a four percent increase in commenced cases, Wise was the sole locality to report a higher 1983 caseload than in the previous year. The 1983 caseload composition for the circuit was 28 percent law, 31 percent equity, 20 percent felony and 21 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was weighted more heavily with law and misdemeanor cases than the statewide breakout of 21 percent and 16 percent, respectively. The circuit concluded 3,135 cases during the year. Of this number, 270 or nine percent were concluded by a jury trial. The age of concluded cases indicated that 59 percent of the total 1,695 civil cases concluded, were on the courts' dockets less than twelve months. For the 1,440 concluded criminal cases, 61 percent were concluded within five months of initiation.

Declining by nine percent, the district reported that 28,299 cases were commenced in 1983. Decreases were noted both in the number of new traffic (-1,612) and civil cases (-1,408). Criminal cases increased by less than one percent when compared with the previous year's figure. The new caseload of that district had a composition of 35 percent criminal, 43 percent traffic and 22 percent civil. This distribution varied significantly from the statewide caseload makeup of 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil. All localities served by the Thirtieth reported a decline in the total number of cases begun in 1983. Most significant was the reported 28 percent drop in the number of new cases for Lee County.

The district's juvenile and domestic relations new caseload rose 11 percent and totaled 4,488 for the year. This increase was the result of an additional 261 adult and 182 juvenile cases being initiated. Wise noted a 24 percent jump in new cases and was the sole locality to report a higher 1983 caseload than in 1982. A total of 10,861 hearings and 4,156 dispositions were also reported by the courts. The 1983 hearings per case ratio was calculated at 2.42 and fell above the statewide average of 1.90 hearings per juvenile and domestic relations cases.

The area was served by twelve magistrates in 1983. They reported a combined total of 16,737 hours of activity during which they received 13,199 inquiries from the public and 31,450 requests for processes. Processes were issued for 26,937 requests. Both transactions and processes declined by 15 percent from the numbers reported in 1982. Arrest warrant processes, representing 30 percent of the total, included 988 for felonies, 6,997 for misdemeanors and 354 for summonses. Personal recognizance and promise to appear bonds totaled 3,110 while secured bonds included 484 for felonies and 1,678 for misdemeanors. Slightly more than 3,000 civil warrants were issued in addition to the 295 subpoenas, 107 search warrants and 5 temporary mental detention orders. Committals and releases were reported as 5,005 and 4,425, respectively.

THIRTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Prince William County and the cities of Manassas and Manassas Park comprise the Thirty-First Judicial Circuit. Increasing in population by 50 percent during the last decade, the Bureau of the Census lists the area as having 166,665 residents. Interestingly, with 60,048 juveniles, the Thirty-First has the highest percentage (36%) of individuals under the age of eighteen among the 31 circuits.

The circuit was authorized three judgeships in 1983. Serving were H. Selwyn Smith, Jr., Percy Thornton, Jr. and Herman A. Whisenant, Jr. Judges Frank A. Hoss, Jr., William R. Murphy and Joseph A. Gallagher heard general district cases while the juvenile and domestic relations cases were handled by Raymond O. Kellam and Patrick D. Molinari. During fiscal year 1983, the five judges of the district used an average of 8.5 assistance days each. Ranking as the second lowest average utilization throughout the state's 31 districts, this measure was well below the state mean of 22.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days per district court judge.

Compared with 1982, the commenced caseload of the circuit experienced a four percent increase and totaled 4,299 for the year. With 2,738 civil filings, the circuit had the ninth largest civil caseload among the 31 circuits. The commenced caseload composition was 27 percent law, 37 percent equity (or 64% in civil), 25 percent felony and 11 percent misdemeanor (or 36% in criminal). The statewide distribution was 55 percent civil and 45 percent criminal. Slightly more than 3,500 cases were concluded during the year, a four percent decline from 1982's figure of 3,663. Included among the 3,512 concluded cases were 128 cases concluded by a jury trial. The number of cases concluded by a jury trial declined by 13 percent from the 147 recorded in 1982. The circuit reported that of the 2,355 civil cases concluded 1,826 (or 78%) were terminated within twelve months of filing. For the 1,157 concluded criminal cases, 86 percent were disposed of within five months of filing.

The number of new general district court cases fell from 1982's figure of 73,871 and numbered 71,451 for 1983. This caseload ranked eighth highest among the state's 32 districts. Decreasing by 13 percent, hearings totaled 67,687. The district's hearings per case ratio of 0.95 was somewhat below the statewide average of 1.14. The composition of the 1983 caseload was 12 percent criminal, 73 percent traffic and 15 percent civil. In comparison the statewide distribution was 16 percent criminal, 55 percent traffic and 29 percent civil.

Although juvenile new cases declined by slightly more than 500, the adult caseload reflected a growth of 283 cases. Reported at 8,859 the caseload was divided 70 percent juvenile and 30 percent adult. The district had the sixth highest caseload throughout the state. With 14,511 hearings, the court averaged 1.64 hearings per case. This was somewhat below the urban average of 1.90 hearings per juvenile and domestic relations case.

The Thirty-First District was authorized eleven magistrates in 1983. They reported that 17,611 hours of service were rendered while responding to the nearly 40,000 inquiries from the public and 48,408 requests for processes. Comparable to the statewide measure, processes were issued for 83 percent of the requests. Although the number of processes declined by 12 percent, the district's level of 40,055 issuances was eighth highest among the state's 32 districts. Slightly more than three-fifths of the processes fell into the categories of arrest warrants (10,515) and committals/releases (14,380). Bonds were issued at a rate of 5.5 for every 10 requested. Unsecured bonds totaled 6,930 and represented 75 percent of the total. Of the 2,355 secured bonds, 1,770 were for misdemeanor charges. During the year, the district's magistrates also issued 2,928 subpoenas, 314 civil warrants, 84 temporary detention orders and 51 search warrants.
